• Polo Grounds Matchless for Football •

Famous for both Pro and College Grid Thrills as well as baseball

NO major league baseball park in this country is so eminently suited for football as is the Polo Grounds. When the ball park was rebuilt after the destruction of the old wooden structure, the arena's future as a football terrain was taken into consideration and the highly successful result lies before you here today.

National League Goes Into Twenty-sixth Year as America's Pro Gridiron Power

THIS is the National Professional Football League's twenty-sixth season of competition. Born in modesty, nurtured in honesty of purpose and confidence in a belief that this country was ripe for professional football from coast to coast, the league has grown from small beginnings into the American professional gridiron power.

Down the years there has been a gradual increase of patronage. This has been more than justified by the type of football produced in the league, by the high grade of skill and keen competition.

During the war, the National League had to fight through against handicaps of reduced manpower, and continual service calls to players.

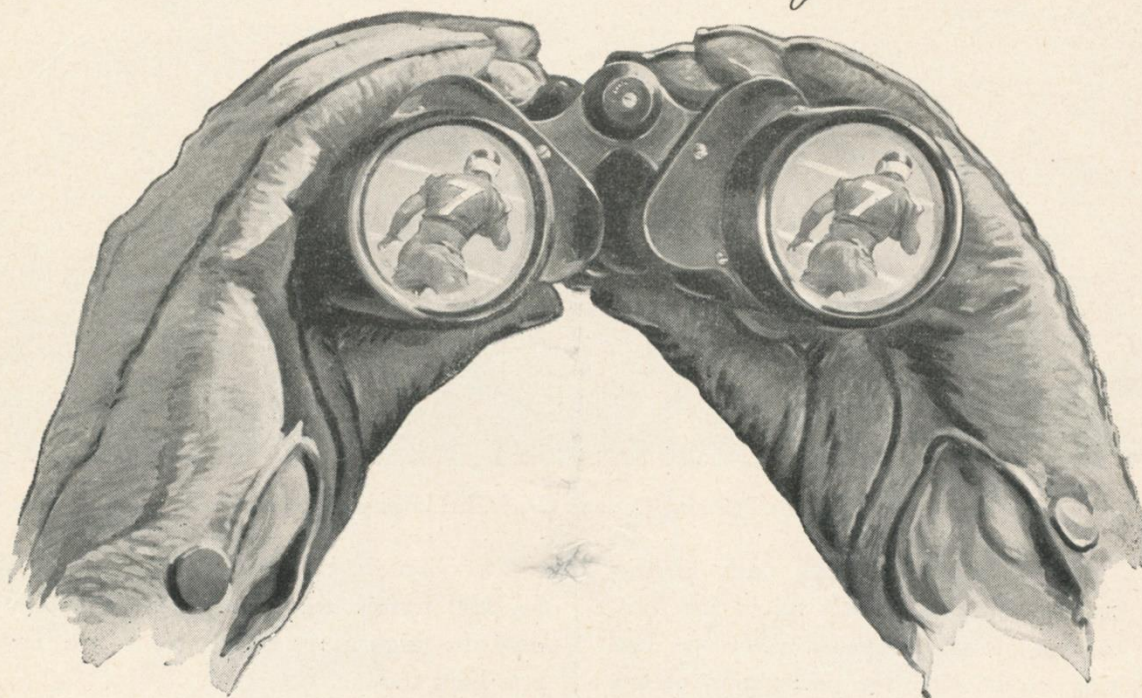

The wartime standard of play was not bad, but it was not up to that of before Pearl Harbor.

However, the fans made allowances and in 1944, piled up amazing attendance records.

With the war over, there will be higher standards of play, and unquestionably higher turnstile counts and growing popular appreciation of what the National League stands for.

Back

Here is a trio of Giant freshmen who are working into the Steve Owen scheme of doing things.

Tom Kearns is a 240 pounder from Miami. Shedlosky came here from Tulsa and Little from Kentucky.

Steve Owen rarely makes mistakes in picking his material. Once they come into late October on the Giant roster it may be taken for granted that they have plenty to recommend them. These new men may make mistakes at first, but they will come through.

Here is a trio of Steve Owen's sophomores. Howie Livingston, a fine back, never shone in intercollegiate competition before he went into the pro ranks. He was at Fullerton Junior College out in California when he was spotted.

Johnny Weiss is another Giant who landed at the Polo Grounds without having achieved the headlines as a campus wow. Digging them out of the nowhere long has been an Owen faculty. Whizzer is from Jersey City.

Pugh built up quite a reputation as a passer and runner at Texas A. and M.

Quite a trio, these second year battlers of the Giant machine!

Great Cleveland Team Next Invader of Polo Grounds On November 4

THERE is a truly spectacular array of talent among the teams listed for the Polo Grounds for the rest of the National League season.

Next Sunday the Giants will tackle the great Cleveland Rams, with Bob Waterfield and Jim Benton, the pass combination that trounced the Bears by 41 to 21 last week.

The dope is that the Rams are the class of the Western half of the National League.

Later the Eagles will be here with Van Buren, Cabrelli, and Zimmerman.

Also to be seen here are Detroit and Green Bay, with their great array of stars.

Giants Have Edge on Cleveland

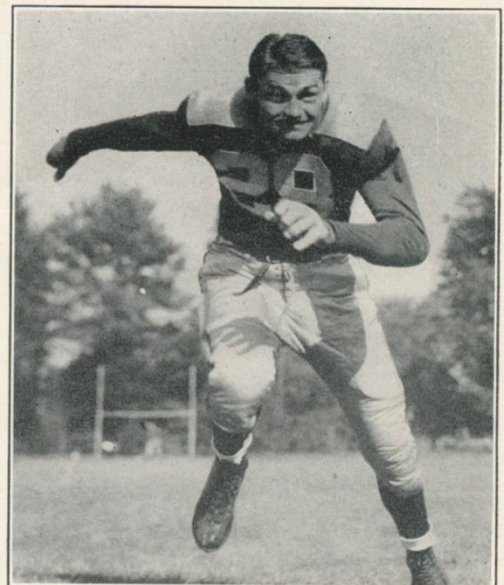

THERE have been very few meetings of the Giants and Cleveland in National League championship competition. As a matter of fact, league records insist their November 4 engagement at the Polo Grounds will be only their fourth meeting.

In the first New York-Cleveland battle, the Giants won. In the second, Cleveland got hunks, but in the third Owen's outfit piled up 49 points. Here is the history of the Giant-Cleveland series:

1938—NEW YORK, 28; CLEVELAND, 0

1940—CLEVELAND, 13; NEW YORK, 0

1941—NEW YORK, 49; CLEVELAND, 14

Arnie Herber, Giant of the Week!

ARNIE HERBER
Veteran Passer

TO Arnie Herber, veteran passer of the New York club, goes the designation of Giant of the Week.

It was Herber who threw the pass which led to the Giants' score in the disappointment against Pittsburgh.

Late in the third period, when the Giants charged from their own 22 to the Steelers' 15, they found themselves four yards short of the distance, fourth down.

Herber pitched a perfect strike to Howie Livingston, who was perched under the cross bar, and New York had a touchdown. Ken Strong's placement was good for the extra point.

Herber is one of the phenomena of the National League. The years have not taken too great a toll of the one-time Green Bay back.

National League Field Levelled Off In Spectacular Competition

ELMER LAYDEN, high commissioner of the National Football League, says that it is possible for the 1945 championship will be won by a club with three defeats against it. The way things have been shaping up, Layden's prophecy may be fulfilled.

Just take a squint at the things that happened last week, alone. The Giants, who had whipped the Steelers by 34 to 6 and were supposed to run over them again, were stunned by a 21 to 7 setback in which Buist Warren, one-time Tennessee star, was the Pittsburgh soark.

Boston, which had held the Giants to a tie and was rated better than Green Bay—or at least, as highly—was whipped by 38 to 14. And the once proud Bears from Chicago took it on the chin again, from Cleveland, 41 to 21.

The record of the Bears is astonishing. They started with a 31 to 21 setback from Green Bay and then came a 17 to 0 pasting by the Rams. A 16 to 7 defeat by the Chicago Cardinals emphasized the fact that Bruno was not the old Grizzlie any more. And then came a fourth straight trouncing, and a second one by Cleveland.

The National League field has levelled off more than ever, and now anything can happen.

Sammy Baugh first made All-League Team after Great Season in 1937

SAMMY BAUGH
Ever-Brilliant Passer

SAMMY BAUGH, Washington's brilliant passer, goes on and on, like Tennyson's brook. Examination of the records of the National League shows that Samuel first made the All-National League team, as a halfback, in 1937. The star backfield of the league that year was composed of Clark, Detroit, quarterback; Battles and Baugh, Washington, halfbacks; Hinkle, Green Bay, fullback.

Here are the All-National League teams for the first ten years, after the circuit began official selections in 1931:

1931—Dilweg (Green Bay) and Badgro (New York), ends; Hubbard (Green Bay) and Christensen (Portsmouth), tackles; Michalske (Green Bay) and Gibson (New York), guards; McNally (Cardinals), center; Clark (Portsmouth), quarterback; Grange (Bears) and Blood (Green Bay), halfbacks; Nevers (Cardinals), fullback.

1932—Flaherty (New York) and Johnson (Bears), ends; Hubbard (Green Bay) and Edwards (Boston), tackles; Carlson (Bears) and Kiesling (Cardinals), guards; Barrager (Green Bay), center; E. Clark (Portsmouth), quarterback; Herber (Green Bay) and Lumpkin (Portsmouth), halfbacks; Nagurski (Bears), fullback.

1933—Hewitt (Bears) and Badgro (New York) ends; Hubbard (Green Bay) and Edwards (Boston), tackles; Hickman (Brooklyn) and Kopcha (Bears), guards; Hein (New York), center; Newman (New York), quarterback; Presnell (Portsmouth) and Battles (Boston), halfbacks; Nagurski (Bears), fullback.

1934—Hewitt (Bears) and Badgro (New York), ends; Christensen (Detroit) and Morgan (New York), tackles; Gibson (New York) and Kopcha (Bears), guards; Hein (New York), center; Clark (Detroit), quarterback; Feathers (Bears) and Strong (New York), halfbacks; Nagurski (Bears), fullback.

1935—Smith (Cardinals) and Karr (Bears), ends; Morgan (New York) and Musso (Bears), tackles; Kopcha (Bears) and Michalske (Green Bay), guards; Hein (New York), center; Clark (Detroit), quarterback; Danowski (New York) and Caddel (Detroit), halfbacks; Mikulak (Cardinals), fullback.

1936—Hewitt (Philadelphia) and Hutson (Green Bay), ends; Edwards (Boston) and E. Smith (Green Bay) tackles; Evans (Green Bay) and Emerson (Detroit), guards; Hein (New York), center; Clark (Detroit), quarterback; Battles (Boston) and Leemans (New York), halfbacks; Hinkle (Green Bay), fullback.

1937—Hewitt (Philadelphia) and Tinsley (Cardinals), ends; Stydahr (Bears) and Edwards (Washington), tackles; Evans (Green Bay) and Musso (Bears), guards; Hein (New York), center; Clark (Detroit), quarterback; Battles (Washington) and Baugh (Washington), halfbacks; Hinkle (Green Bay), fullback.

1938—Hutson (Green Bay) and Tinsley (Cardinals), ends; Widseth (New York) and Stydahr (Bears), tackles; Fortmann (Bears) and Letlow (Green Bay), guards; Hein (New York), center; Parker (Brooklyn), quarterback; Danowski (New York) and Cardwell (Detroit), halfbacks; Hinkle (Green Bay), fullback.

Giants Went Into 1944 Playoff with Powerful Green Bay Team

WITH this afternoon's games, the 1945 championship schedule of the National Football League completes the October sequence, and heads into the more interesting developments of November. There already have been more thrills and upsets than ordinarily would be jammed into two complete campaigns.

The 1944 season resulted in a victory for the Giants in the Eastern half of the circuit, and a Green Bay success in the West. In the playoffs, the Packers were triumphant, 14 to 7. The Polo Grounders previously had beaten them by 24 to 0.

Easily the feature of the 1944 schedule was the amazing campaign of the Giants in the second half. On October 29, New York was beaten by Philadelphia, 24 to 17, and it looked as if Steve Owen's title chances had gone aglimmering.

However, on November 5, the Giants trounced Boston by 31 to 0. Then came a 21 to 21 tie with Philadelphia, and a smashing triumph over Green Bay, 24 to 0. This was one of the outstanding feats of National League competition of a decade.

On November 26, the Giants beat Brooklyn, 7 to 0, and on December 3, Owen's gang trounced the Washington Redskins, 16 to 13. A second victory over Washington, 31 to 0, sent the Giants into the playoff with Green Bay. Despite a valiant stand and a brilliant showing, the Polo Grounders were outdone.

At all stages of the schedule the Giants featured fight and brilliant coaching. The Brooklyn club, this season amalgamated with Boston, gained a reputation as the most luckless team the league had seen in years.

The famous Chicago Bears ran into their surprises on September 24, when they lost to Green Bay, 42 to 28, and November 19, when Detroit trounced the Halas outfit by 41 to 21.
