SANDERS AND YOUNG HERE NEXT—

Ordinarily a football coach dislikes being put on the spot. There are exceptions though. At a recent meeting of the New York Football Writers Association, Ray Flaherty, studious, quiet-spoken mentor of the Yanks, was placed on a spot that he enjoyed very much. He was asked who was the better back, Spec Sanders or Buddy Young.

There probably isn't a coach in the country who wouldn't have changed places with Ray which is to say that they wouldn't mind having Young and Sanders on their team. The two stars are a great combination, a double edge, razor-like threat which in one stroke can cut the jugular vein of the defense. Of course Flaherty didn't answer the question directly. Not because he didn't want to but because he couldn't.

SPEC SANDERS and BUDDY YOUNG—Mr. Thunder and Mr. Lightning pack the one-two punch for Ray Flaherty's high-stepping Yankees.

"It's not a question of which one is better," he explained. "They are entirely different types. One complements the other and increases the other's value. It is easy to say that Young is faster but at the same time you have to note that Sanders is more versatile."

Sanders, who has been plowing into the record book and uprooting all time records in virtually every offensive category, admits readily that Young should share in the credit for every yard he has gained. In fact, he tosses Young laurels for blocking, a department in which the famous Illinois speedster, had never been recognized. "Buddy has done some terrific blocking for me." Sanders relates. "His tremendous speed and drive allows him to get the proper blocking angle on many occasions when a slower man could not do so."

Sanders, last year, was a fine player. This year he is one of the greatest in the game. He attributes the improvement to two reasons, (1), the presence of Young on the team, (2) the work and practice he put in before reporting to training camp. It's a fact, rather than a publicity stunt, that during the Summer months he spent hours every day working out in a plowed field. He worked on his passing and punting while the unsure footing and broken surface of the field built up and conditioned his legs. The results have been proven not only in his passing and punting figures but also in his durability.

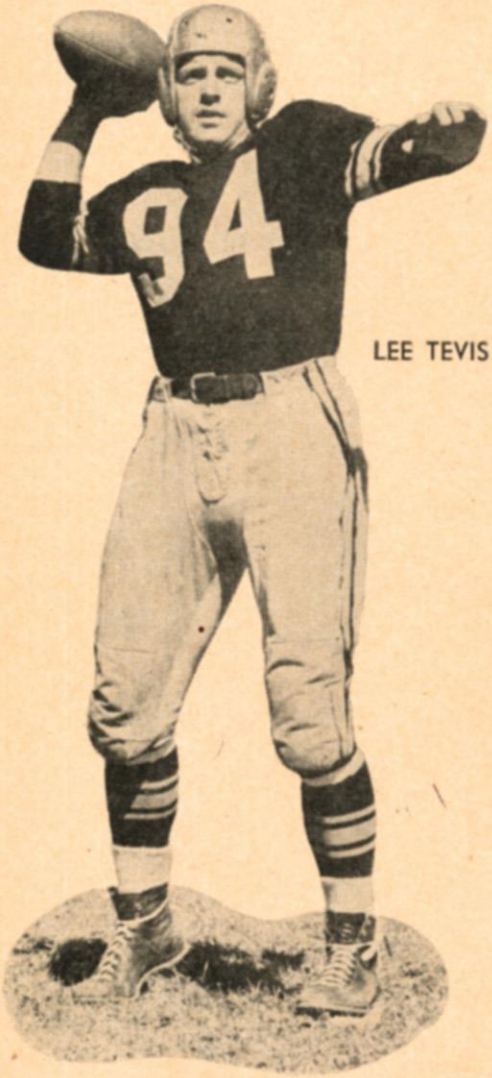

It is this type of spirit which may also make Young a triple threat star. Coach Flaherty makes no secret of the fact that Buddy has been drilling regularly in passing and punting. As Flaherty comments, "Buddy is going to be a fine kicker before long. In fact he is close to being one right now. In practice he gets them off for 60 and 65 yards. He is still not a good passer but he is improving all the time and before the season is over, he may be throwing some in the games."

Of course, two backs don't make a ball club. Messrs. Young and Sanders would be the first to admit it. The Yanks have plenty more not only in the backfield but also on the line with two such brilliant ends as Bruce Alford and Jack Russell, an outstanding rookie lineman such as Dick Barwegan and a host of brawny tackles, guards and centers who play as though their entire career depended on every block they make.

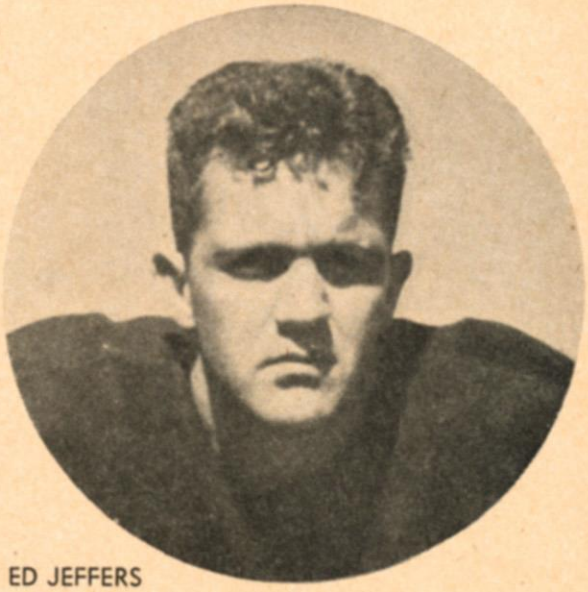

Yes, those Yanks are a great ball club . . . and they'll be here in Ebbets Field for the season's final game, Sunday, December 7.

MEET THE DODGER COACHES—

CLIFF BATTLES: One of the greatest ball carriers ever seen on a football field, he gained All America recognition at little West Virginia Wesleyan in '30 and '31. After graduation in '32, he signed with the then Boston Redskins and was on the way to one of pro football's most outstanding careers. During his six years of action, he was named to the All League team three years and wrote into the books records which still stand.

In '33 playing against the Giants in Boston, he staged one of the most remarkable performances in gridiron annals, carrying the ball for a total gain of 215 yards, a mark which has never been touched. In '37 against the Giants at the Polo Grounds, he got loose on a 68-yard run with an intercepted pass, a run which has been called the most spectacular ever seen.

That run was his farewell to pro football's playing ranks. At the end of the season, Coach Lou Little offered him a berth as assistant coach at Columbia. Though he felt he still had several good years as a player ahead of him, he decided to get an early start in the coaching field and accepted Little's offer.

He remained at Columbia six years, leaving to enter the Marines. He served as athletic officer at the El Toro Marine base where he was also assistant coach of the football team. Later he was transferred to the Hawaiian Islands where he became head coach of the Fleet Marine All Stars.

Discharged in the Winter of '46 and finding no desirable coaching berths open, he forsook the field of football to enter business with a friend in New Rochelle, N. Y. The call of the pigskin, however, was too strong and when the opportunity to coach the Dodgers came along, he accepted, succeeding Mal Stevens as head coach in mid-season of last year.

STEVE HOKUF: A former team mate of Battles' on the Boston Redskins, he was named Cliff's assistant coach during the past Winter. He began his football career at Nebraska University in the early Thirties, playing a standout game at end and receiving All Big Six designation three straight years. He joined the Redskins following graduation, playing with the pros for three years as both end and blocking back.

In '36 he retired from the player ranks and became line coach at Colorado School of Mines. A year later he joined the athletic staff at Wyoming U. where he remained until '42 when he entered service in Tom Hamilton's naval air force training program.

He served one year as football coach at the St. Mary's Preflight School before shipping aboard the aircraft carrier Belleau Wood as athletic officer. He was abroad the carrier during the first bombing of the Jap mainland and later through the campaign at Okinawa. Following his discharge last year, he returned to Wyoming U. where he assisted coaching the football team.

TOM SCOTT: One of the youngest members of a coaching staff in pro football, he is a 27-year-old, 6-3, 215-pounder whose playing career was cut short by a knee injury. Played Freshman football at NYU in '39, leaving to accept an appointment to West Point. He left the Academy in '43 after suffering the knee injury but a short time later was back in uniform as a member of an anti-aircraft unit which saw service in France, Belgium, Germany and Austria. Discharged last year, he signed with the Dodgers as an end but when his injured knee rebelled during the training period, he was removed from the active list and appointed assistant coach.

WAYNE GIFT: Played quarterback under Coach Noble Kizer at Purdue ('34, '35, '36) and entered pro ranks with Cleveland Rams after graduation. Left the pros after one season to start coaching career at Wadsworth H. S., Ohio. Transferred two years later to South Side H. S., Fort Wayne, Ind. Entered the Navy, March '42. Stationed at the Iowa Preflight School he donned the playing pads again to play under Coach Bernie Bierman. Following his discharge in December '45, he joined the Brown and Bigelow Advertising Co. in Chicago but a year later went into the restaurant business for himself in Fort Wayne. Back to football this Spring when asked to join Dodger staff.

INTRODUCING BUCK SHAW—

Lawrence T. Shaw is a wily individual who says little and accomplishes much. Lawrence T., better known as "Buck", is head coach of the San Francisco Forty-Niners. Now, the Forty-Niners are a rugged outfit, one of the best in pro football circles. They're manned by stars of the caliber of Frankie Albert, Norman Standlee, Alyn Beals and Len Eshmont. But it so happens that if Lawrence T. Shaw came into Ebbets Field with a team recruited from PS 27, it would still be a tough one to beat. He's that kind of a coach.

Buck is by no means a newcomer to the front rank in coaching circles. He learned his football under Knute Rockne and invariably is selected on the All Time, All Notre Dame eleven. He began coaching at North Carolina State, shortly after graduation, transferred to the University of Nevada and ultimately wound up at Santa Clara.

LAWRENCE T. (BUCK) SHAW—Former Santa Clara mentor, one of the most astute coaches in the game, is the genius behind the Kezar Kids.

There, for years, his team was rated among the nation's top ten. In two successive years, his team was invited to the Sugar Bowl, whipping Louisiana State each time.

With the outbreak of war, Santa Clara abandoned its athletic program and Buck became increasingly interested in the professional field. It is also true that the pro field became increasingly interested in him. Thus when the San Francisco franchise in the All-America Conference was formed, Buck was tendered the head coaching office.

It took Buck only one year to prove he belonged in the pro field. Unfortunately, his squad has never been deep in reserve strength. More unforunately, he has encountered an injury jinx which has consistently depleted his available manpower. But, despite such misfortunes, he has never failed to field a team which has not been a contender and a threat throughout.

A frequently employed yardstick of success in Conference play is the effectiveness of a coach against the powerful Cleveland Browns. In this regard, Buck measures up remarkably well. Last season, in the first meeting with the Browns, his Forty-Niners laid them low 34-20. The second meeting was a bone crushing, tooth jarring struggle which finally went to the Browns 14-7. This year when they first met, it was another titanic clash with the Browns again winning out by the same 14-7 score.

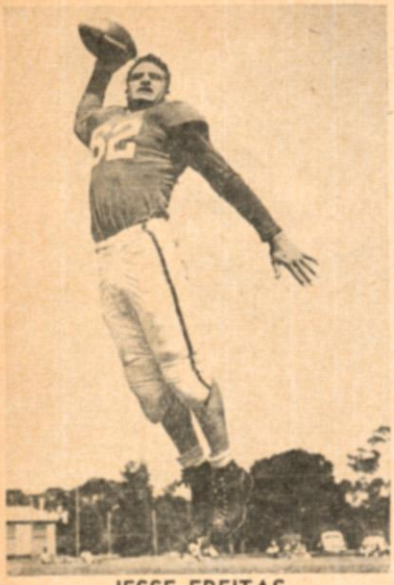

As with most other outstanding coaches, Buck insists that material makes the mentor. That is at best a half-truth since even the finest of material needs leadership and purposeful direction. Buck has material but he has also given that material the direction it has required.

His "T" formation offense is guided by one of the cleverest ball handlers and signal callers who ever donned a shoulder pad. A little fellow of only 170 pounds, Frankie Albert was the original "T" quarterback, an All-American at Stanford University where the "T" was first used with outstanding success.

At fullback, he has Norman "Red" Standlee, a 245 pounder who earned his All-American honors on the same Stanford team as Albert and who later was hailed as one of the greatest fullbacks of all time when performing with the Chicago Bears.

Add Len Eshmont and Joe Strzykalski to round out the backfield foursome and you have one of the most effective ball-advancing combinations in the business.

The Forty-Niners have it . . . speed, power, cleverness. And more than those ever necessary attributes, they have coaching, thanks to that wily, soft spoken individual, Lawrence T. Shaw.

FOOTBALL CONTEST

In conjunction with Sears-Roebuck & Co. at Bedford Ave. and Beverly Rd., Brooklyn, the Football Dodgers are conducting a weekly football drawing with the winners receiving an official All America Conference football autographed by the Dodgers.

This contest is open to all under 18 and may be entered merely by filling out an entry blank obtainable at the Sears-Roebuck Store. The winners for the last drawing are:

George J. Eggers, 1356 E. 53rd St., B'klyn.
Joseph O'Brien, 115 Rogers Ave., B'klyn.

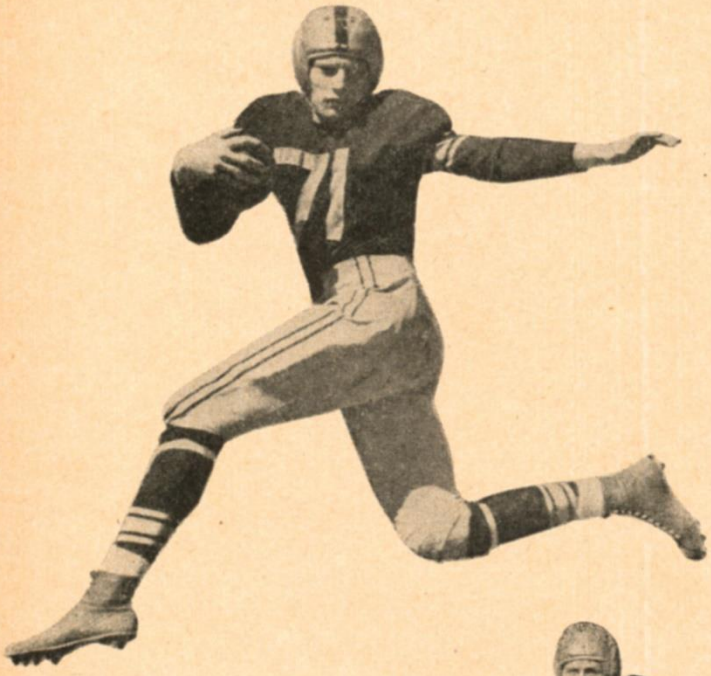

PRIZE WINNING PROGRAM COVER!

The Football Dodgers are again proud to present a program with a cover designed by a Brooklyn art student, winner of the second annual Program Cover Contest sponsored by the Dodgers throughout schools in Brooklyn, Queens and Richmond.

The winner of this year's contest and designer of this cover is Jay Harper of 88 Bay 32nd St., Brooklyn, a student of Pratt Institute, who received an award of $50. Prizes totaling $225 were awarded to participants.

DETAILS ON THE DODGERS—

AKINS, ALBERT G.—Starred in baseball and football at Washington U. Played with Cleveland Browns in '46, coming to Dodgers in exchange for halfback Mickey Mayne. During past Summer played baseball in Western International League. Lives in Spokane, Wash.

BENSON, GEORGE N.—Graduate of Northwestern where he starred at fullback for three years and also played basketball and baseball. Was a carrier pilot during the war, serving 16 months in the South Pacific. Received All-Service designation with Iowa Preflight eleven.

BERNHARDT, GEORGE—Now in second season with Dodgers. Graduate of Illinois, playing three varsity seasons. In Army Air Force almost four years, receiving discharge as captain. Started almost every game for Dodgers last season. Now lives in Riverside, Ill.

BUFFINGTON, HARRY—Former National League star, now in second year with Dodgers. On Dec. 7, '41, when the Japs attacked Pearl Harbor, was playing against Dodgers in Polo Grounds. Was college star at Oklahoma A&M. Started 11 of 14 games last season. Lives in Beckham, Okla.

COLMER, JOHN (MICKEY)—In second year with Dodgers but first year at fullback, his natural position. One of fastest men on squad and a powerful runner. Signed to play pro baseball while in junior college and as result played no college football. Lives in Miramonte, Cal.

CONGER, MELVIN R.—Exceptionally fast despite 220-pound frame. Played at University of Georgia under Coach Wally Butts and was obtained by Dodgers from Yankees, with whom he played last year. Discharged as First Lieut. after four years' duty with Army Air Force.

DAUKAS, LOUIS J.—Brother of team mate, Nick, Dodger tackle. Starred at Cornell for two years, captaining team one year. Played under Coach Carl Snavely. Served for three years with Quartermaster Corps and, on receiving discharge, returned to complete schooling.

DAUKAS, NICHOLAS JAMES—Graduate of NYU Medical School. Now interning at Bellevue Hospital. Oldest of football-minded family. Brother Lou captained Cornell eleven last year. Brother Bob now playing at Dartmouth. Second year with Dodgers. Now living in New York.

GAFFORD, ROY (MONK)—One of football's fastest and most dangerous open field runners. Specializes in punt returns. Set all time pro record in '46 by averaging 31.4 yards per return. Obtained late last season in trade with Miami. Lives in Letohachie, Ala.

GIBSON, JOSEPH—One of steadiest and most experienced players on squad. Veteran of three National League seasons prior to war. Starting second season with Dodgers. Starred at Tulsa University for three years. Stands out on defense. Now lives in Fort Worth, Tex.

GUSTAFSON, EDSEL—Basketball and football star at George Washington U. Served three years with Navy Amphibious Forces, returning to school after discharge. Played in Chicago-Tribune All-Star game in August, helping beat Bears 16-0. Lives in Arlington, Va.

HARRIS, EDWIN A. (MIKE)—Played three varsity years at Mississippi State. Was standout performer in North-South game the past year and received All-Conference recognition. Was selected to play with Chicago Tribune All-Stars this year. Lives in Birmingham, Ala.

HARRIS, ELMORE—One of fastest men in football. Former holder of National AAU titles at 440 and 600 yards. Starred in football at Morgan State College, Baltimore, scoring 37 touchdowns in two seasons. Specializes in kickoff returns. Now living in Bronx.

HEIN, ROBERT W.—Four-letter athlete at Kent State University, Ohio. Graduated in '43 and entered Marines. Played two years of service football at El Toro. Received discharge as First Lieutenant. Remained out of football last year.

HOERNSCHEMEYER, ROBERT (HUNCHY)—One of the brightest stars of the All-America Conference last year, Hoernschemeyer came to the Dodgers from Chicago this year in the three-way deal that sent Glenn Dobbs to Los Angeles and Angelo Bertelli from the Dons to the Rockets. A collegiate star at Indiana and Navy, Hunchy is a crack passer and runner. In 1946, he ranked third in the AAC in total offense, with 375 yards gained running, 1266 yards passing for an aggregate of 1641. He was directly responsible for fourteen touchdowns.

HUNEKE, CHARLES F.—A football, basketball and track star at high school in hometown Springfield, Ill., he displayed his talents at St. Benedicts College (Kans.) and St. Mary's College (Tex.). Serving three years with the Marines, he played football with the El Toro eleven.

JEFFERS, EDWARD F.—One of most decorated athletes in the country. In Infantry three years, with 28 months of duty in Pacific. Awarded Purple Heart, Bronze Star, Silver Star and Distinguished Service Cross. Graduate of Oklahoma A&M. Lives in McAlester, Okla.

JONES, WILLIAM A. (DUB)—Starting first full year with Dodgers. Acquired late last year in deal with Miami Seahawks. Graduate of Louisiana State where he also starred in track. Saw submarine duty during three years in Navy. Now lives in Ruston, La.

JUDD, SAXON THOMAS—One of pro football's outstanding pass receivers. Ranked third in Conference last year with 33 receptions, good for six touchdowns. Starred with Glenn Dobbs at Tulsa U. spearing five straight in '43 Sugar Bowl. Lives in Tulsa, Okla.

KOWALSKI, ADOLPH E. (AL)—Originally a Nutmegger from Connecticut, he played football at Tulsa U, and now lives in that city. Graduated with degree in engineering and expects to continue in that field after pro career is over. Veteran of three bowl games.

MARTINOVICH, PHILIP J.—Pro football's only left-footed placement specialist. Holds NL record with three field goals against Giants. Joined Dodgers after start of last season and became team's second highest scorer with 33 points. Now lives in Jersey City, N. J.

McCARTHY, JAMES PATRICK—One of outstanding players with Dodgers last year. Speared eleven passes for three touchdowns and starred on defense. Graduate of Illinois U, where he also won Big Ten golf championship. Served two years with Marines. Now lives in Lockport, Ill.

McDONALD, WALTER VINCENT—One of outstanding blocking backs and line backers-up in football. Graduate of Tulane U, where he received All-America recognition. Came to Dodgers from Miami in mid-season of '46. In Navy over two years. Now lives in Flagstaff, Ariz.

MIESZKOWSKI, EDWARD T.—A pro grid veteran at 22, one of youngest players in the game. Starred for two years at Notre Dame, under Coaches Ed McKeever and Hugh Devore. Developed rapidly and was a starter at end of '46 schedule. Now lives in Chicago.

NELSON, HERBERT R.—Learned his football at University of Pennsylvania under Coach George Munger. Graduated in '43 and entered Navy. Served two years as aviation instructor and after receiving discharge signed to play pro football. Lives in Hartford, Conn.

PERINA, ROBERT I.—Product of Irvington, N. J., and Princeton University. Starred in baseball and track and after graduation was signed by Boston Red Sox. Played with Louisville farm club until he entered Marines. Wounded on Saipan. During off-season is employed by a Wall Street brokerage firm.

KUBY, MARTIN OWEN—One of pro football's outstanding linesmen. Received All-America recognition at Texas A&M. Starred in Chicago Tribune All-Star squad in '46. Played virtually 55 minutes of every Dodger game last season. Now lives in Waco, Texas.

SCRUGGS, EDWIN T.—"Iron Man" end of Rice's championship eleven last season. Comes from Houston, Texas, where he starred as a schoolboy athlete. College career interrupted by three years with Navy Air Corps but completed schooling at Rice after receiving discharge.

TACKETT, DOYLE LEE—Starting second year with Dodgers. Developed rapidly last season despite his lack of college experience. Was spotted as a star while playing with Fleet City Bluejackets during war. Fine pass receiver. Lives in Atkins, Ark.

TEVIS, LEE KESSLER—Sprint and hurdles star as schoolboy, setting state record in hurdles. Played two years of football at Washington U (St. Louis), before entering Marines. After discharge completed schooling at Michigan University. Lives in St. Louis, Mo.

THOMPSON, HAROLD C.—Starred at University of Delaware on team which won thirty-one consecutive games. Served with Infantry for 32 months and completed college career after receiving discharge. In first game with Dodgers caught nine passes for AAFC record.

WARRINGTON, TEX.—All America at Auburn U in '44 now starting second year with Dodgers. Bone-crushing tackler on defense. Starred as pitcher in college. Sought after by several big league clubs but after two years in Marines decided on football as career.

WETZ, HARLAN HENRY—One of biggest men in pro football. Only 22 years old and signed with Dodgers after graduation from Texas U where he played four varsity seasons. Received All Conference honors in '45 and '46. Now lives in New Braunfels, Texas.

WILLIAMS, GARLAND (BULLDOG)—Entered Georgia after graduation from high school in '40, but college career was interrupted by three years of duty with Marines. Re-entered Georgia after receiving his discharge and starred on undefeated eleven last year. Lives in Heath, Ark.
