BEFORE WE SAY GOODBYE FOR 1947

TODAY'S game with the Washington Redskins marks the last home appearance for 1947 of your New York Football Giants. Next Sunday, December 14, the Giants officially close the season with a game against the Los Angeles Rams in the Coliseum at Los Angeles, California.

For the past 23 years it has been the custom of the Football Giants' management to devote this page of the last home game program to expressing the club's thanks to its fans for their loyal and continued patronage and to wish them all a premature but very sincere Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. This year the Giant management is equally sincere in expressing its thanks to its very loyal group of supporters and to wish them the Season's best.

However, before we bow out on 1947 the Giants wish to ask you fans to roll up your sleeves for a little football skullwork, research and advice. We want you to come into the huddle with us and express yourself on a subject you should have a lot to say about since it is you fans who make the Giants by your attendance at our games.

The Giant management is determined to give you fans the best football team it is possible to assemble in 1948. We want to give you a Giant team worthy of other great Giant teams of the past and we want it to be a team that all of you can feel you had a hand in selecting—a Giant team selected by Giant fans.

So get out your pencil—start looking through the record books—use your spare time scouting and then make your selections on the attached coupon and rush it into the Giant office at 11 West 42nd Street, New York 18, N. Y. In making our draft selections, we will concentrate on the players you favor.

Here is your chance really to bring in the players you want to see. Don't wait—go to work now and let's hear from you.

Governali, the Record Buster, Shares Giant-of-the-Week Honors with Roberts

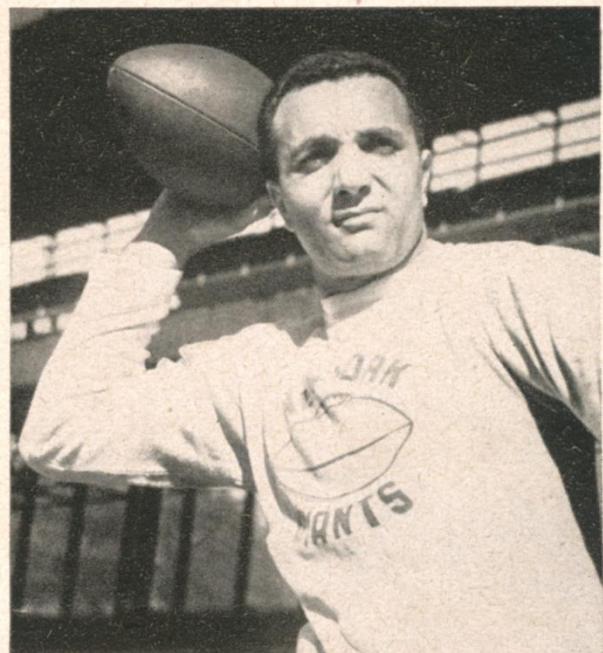

ONCE again we present Paul Governali, the Record Buster, as the Giant-of-the-Week. Pitching Paul achieved his old-time All-America form for the first time as a Giant in the stunning upset of the talented Cardinals and Governali at his best always means the record-book is in danger. That is his history. At Columbia from 1940 through 1942 he wiped out 12 Sid Luckman marks which seemed destined to stand forever. As one of the finest pro freshmen in the history of the National League at Boston last year he gave the Yanks an entirely new set of passing records, as he finished third only to Waterfield and Luckman in the league standings. And now, with Paul finally integrated into the Steve Owen system, the Giants may look forward to sensational feats by the old Lion next year.

Governali had a close fight for Giant-of-the-Week honors in the Cardinal game. Just as Paul put forth his finest exhibition, so also did Gene (Choo-Choo) Roberts from Chattanooga. Governali passed for two touchdowns and plunged for two more. Roberts provided the speed running which the Giants so badly lacked this season, and helped split the defenses for Paul's masterful signal-calling. With running power at his command for the first time, Governali cleverly used his passing skill as a threat through his faking on the fourth touchdown drive, in which he called five straight running plays to travel 61 yards with Choo-Choo drilling the final nine.

To see Governali and Roberts operating in matchless form against the Cards, you might not realize they were badly handicapped in previous games. Roberts, the prize Giant rookie, was hurt in training camp at Superior and, injured again subsequently, was not able to show his true form until the Cardinals got to town. He demonstrated last Sunday that the Giants were right—and the scoffers wrong—in selecting him in the draft off last season's record of 1113 yards and 18 TDs.

Governali of course came back to an old love—the single wing—after his 1946 experiences as the slot-man under the center at Boston. But that wasn't all there was to it. Paul had to learn signals, had to estimate the talent and speed of his mates, particularly the pass-catchers, and had to revamp his own timing from T to single-wing and A-formation plays. That took five weeks.

Something the fans didn't know last year, when Paul got a good-pitch, no-run reputation at Boston, was that he suffered a bad charley horse just before the season opened and that it never healed because of the rugged work demanded of him in the campaign. He ran last week, and ran well.

PAUL GOVERNALI

One of his dashes, in fact, launched the final thrilling touchdown march which Paul capped with a scoring pass to Frank Liebel. This brought the Giants their first victory of the season, after their gallant efforts against Pittsburgh and Green Bay produced only a defeat and a tie.

These stars of the Cardinal game have mighty impressive figures in their background, portentous of success for the Giants in the future. No more sterling mark ever was put in the books than Governali's 1442 yards passing at Columbia to lead the nation in 1942. You remember the slogan of the Lion's foes that year—Stop Governali and you stop Columbia. Instead of being stopped, Pitching Paul led them all, and such great passers as Glenn Dobbs, Otto Graham, Frankie Sinkwich and Angelo Bertelli were throwing the ball that year also. Last year with a poor team at Boston, Paul gained 1293 yards, threw 13 touchdowns, and saw his receivers fumble at least 10 other sure-fire touchdown flips.

Roberts, who is only 22 and truly a Giant for the future, rolled up only 212 yards fewer than the combined yardage of the Blanchard-Davis combination with his 1113 yards at Chattanooga. Gene was No. 2 ground-gainer and scorer in the nation, and also starred at track.

So future foes must watch out for speedy Roberts, once again the Choo-Choo, and above all for Governali, once again the Record Buster.

OF THE GIANTS

BOB DOBELSTEIN

It's an oft-told story about the backs rushing to all the glory and the linemen gaining only the hard knocks of the game. So for this final home game—lest we forget—may we introduce six of the rock-and-sock Giants who fought so bravely in a losing cause this season, until they finally were rewarded with victory, if not the headlines that fall to the ball-carriers.

The sextet is a varied crew. Len Younce, one of the brilliant diagnosticians of enemy offense in the league, is in his fifth year as a standout guard. At the other extreme is John Cannady, the versatile back and center who shone as a backer-up in his first season out of Indiana.

In the middle group are four scintillating sophomores: Bob Dobelstein, guard; Lou Palazzi, center, and the pair of dynamic tackles, Jim White and Tex Coulter. Coulter proved his versatility this year when he moved to end and put forth stalwart work to relieve a shortage on the wings.

Rock-and-sock guys, all of them, and here is their salute in lieu of the glory which they deserve but never win.

SAMMY BAUGH, SUPREME STYLIST, IS FOOTBALL'S GREATEST PASSER

SAMMY BAUGH

In Slingin' Sammy Baugh, the Washington Redskins present one of football's all-time greats. There never has been a passer to match the rifle-armed sharpshooter from Texas.

Steve Owen of the Giants summed up the best defense against Baugh in a few succinct words after the newspapers carried glowing reports on Sammy's great performance against the Chicago Cardinals, when he completed 25 of 33 attempts for 355 yards and six touchdowns.

"When old Sammy gets hot, there's just one thing to do," said Stout Steve to Jimmy Conzelman, the mournful victim of Baugh's aerial depredations. "That's to sit on the sidelines and fan yourself!"

Other passers have had their moments of greatness—Cecil Isbell, Sid Luckman, Bob Waterfield and Paul Governali, just to mention a few—but year in and year out Baugh carries on, adding new records to the flock he already holds.

A stand-out ever since he came to the Redskins from Texas Christian in 1937, Baugh is having one of his greatest seasons—this in a year when the Redskins are sub-par.

There is no passer quite like Sammy. Gifted with split-vision eyes and a whiplash arm, he has an uncanny knack of getting the ball away to the receiver who is open, with that quick, side-arm wrist flip of his.

He throws them long and he throws them short, and heaven help the defensive halfback who commits himself before Sammy releases the ball. It is a big feature of his wizardry that he can capitalize on such rashness in the last split-second.

Baugh's name and forward-passing greatness have been synonymous for so long that casual followers of football may be inclined to forget his other attributes. There is no finer punter than Sammy and, after taking a couple of seasons to get adjusted, he has developed into just as bewildering a T-formation magician as Waterfield.

The accompanying table will give an idea of Baugh's ability. An off-year for Sammy would be a great year for anyone else and at his best, of course, he is beyond approach.

Sammy Baugh's all-time record:

Year	Atts.	Comp.	Pct.	Yds. Gained	TD Passes	Int.
1937	171	81	.473	1127	7	14
1938	128	63	.492	853	5	11
1939	96	53	.552	518	6	9
1940	177	111	.627	1367	12	10
1941	193	106	.549	1236	10	19

FOR A WORTHY CAUSE

There are many world famous men of medicine: Walter Reed, the conqueror of yellow fever; William C. Gorgas, whose achievements in sanitation made possible the Panama Canal; Joseph Goldberger who discovered the cause of pellagra and a host of others have established their mark in terms of human values. They were pioneers in the field of preventive medicine; they helped to raise the standards of human health throughout the world.

These men, and the one out of every six doctors entering practice in greater New York, received their training at the College of Medicine, which is a central unit in the New York University-Bellevue Medical Center.

Founded on a tradition of one hundred years of public service, this will be, on completion, one of the great medical centers of the world. It seems appropriate, indeed, that this Medical Center, which is to occupy a nine-block area on the east side of Manhattan, is to be a neighbor of the new home of the United Nations, an institute also pioneering in preventive measures!

Giants Lead Redskins in All-Time Series

There is no rivalry in the National Football League that provokes more frenzy than the traditional late-season battle between the New York Giants and the Washington Redskins. Ever since the league was broken into two divisions, this contest has decided the Eastern championship as often as not.

Up to this year, when both teams are out of the running, either the Giants or the Redskins have been the leaders of their section. New York won that honor eight times, Washington six times. In addition, the Giants have been runner-up twice and the Redskins have finished second thrice.

The fact that there are no title implications in today's battle does not lessen its importance to these keen rivals. This still is the game that both teams want to win above all others. The sting of other defeats will be forgotten in the exultation of a victory today.

New York and Washington have been meeting regularly since 1937, when George Preston Marshall shifted his Redskin franchise from Boston to the nation's capital. Twenty-two games have been played in this period and the Giants have registered twelve victories to nine for the Redskins. One game was tied. The point tally gives an idea of how close the competition has been.

In the scoring department, Washington holds a minute edge, 299 points to 295.

Their October game at Washington, won by the Redskins 28-20, was a real thriller and today's contest promises more of the same frenetic action. It is always a torrid fray when the Giants and Redskins get together.

The New York-Washington series record:

1937	—Washington 13, Giants 3
	Washington 49, Giants 14
1938	—Giants 10, Washington 7
1938	—Giants 36, Washington 0
1939	—Giants 0, Washington 0
	Giants 9, Washington 7

1941	—Giants 17, Washington 10
	Giants 20, Washington 13

	Washington 14, Giants 7
1943	—Giants 14, Washington 10

EAGLES AND BEARS NOW LEAD PACK BUT PLAY-OFF RIVALS ARE STILL IN DOUBT

Although the Philadelphia Eagles and the Chicago Bears moved to the head of the parade last week, neither of the divisional races in the National Football League is definitely settled. Chances are the identity of the opponents in the circuit's championship play-off, scheduled for Dec. 21 in the West, will remain clouded until the regular campaign ends next Sunday.

As matters now stand in the East, Philadelphia holds a half-game edge, on the losing side, over the Pittsburgh Steelers, whose injury-ridden squad was no match for the Eagles last Sunday. Philadelphia has home games left with the Chicago Cardinals today and Green Bay next Sunday. Pittsburgh finishes at home against Boston today.

If the Eagles can beat one of their two tough Western opponents, Greasy Neale's charges will be sure of no worse than a tie. Even if Philadelphia should fail in these games, the chances of a deadlock are strong. Pittsburgh very well could lose to the improved Yanks today. Jock Sutherland's battered club is on the ropes. If the Eagles and the Steelers tie, a divisional play-off will be necessary with the championship game moving back to Dec. 28 (Br-r-r!)

Unless the fading Cardinals lose to the Eagles today while the Bears are surviving their vendetta with the Los Angeles Rams, the Western Division showdown will be deferred until next Sunday, when the Chicago rivals clash at Wrigley Field. All the odds in this set-up ride with the Bears, who are a full game ahead. But, of course, nothing is ever sure until that final score is posted.
