GIANTS SET FOR HOME DEBUT

UNBEATEN in three road games, the New York Giants welcome their friends today as they open their twenty-eighth season at the Polo Grounds with the Chicago Cardinals. It's a new Giant team in many respects and the newness is practically all in the offensive platoon, which has displayed great explosive power in scoring 72 points against Dallas, Philadelphia and Cleveland.

Another innovation this year will be the special days set aside by the Giants to show their appreciation for the support of their many fans from the outlying locations. Today is Long Island Day and the Hempstead High School band will entertain between halves. New Jersey will have its day next Sunday, when the Eagles will be in town. November 9 is Connecticut Day, with the San Francisco Forty-Niners as the opposition. On November 16, with Green Bay at the Polo Grounds, the day is Westchester's and New York State's and, on December 7, with the Redskins here, the day will be shared by Greater New York and Washington. Now's the time to plan your parties and get in touch with the Giants' office for blocks of tickets.

But back to the team: Nine rookies dot the roster and seven second-year pros give the Giants one of the youngest championship contenders with an average age of 25.2 years. It's the rookies who have given this club its explosive offensive power and, strange as it may seem, the big change is not in the backfield but in the line.

Two new tackles, Dick Yelvington from Georgia and Hal Mitchell, of U. C. L. A., and three new guards—only two at a time, of course—make the offense click with their speed and blocking prowess. The guards are Ray Beck, everyone's all-America from Georgia Tech; George Kennard, of Kansas, and Bob Patton, Clemson's captain last year.

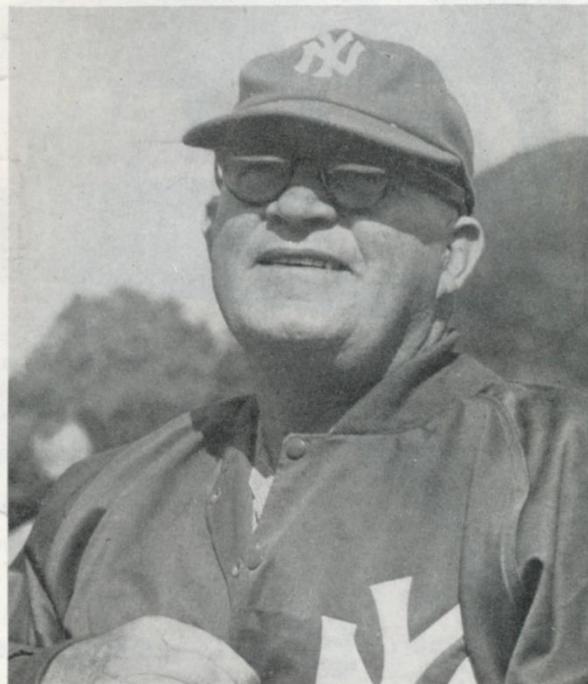

"These boys make the plays go this year that we had trouble with in other seasons," says Steve Owen. "They are fast and can block."

Frank Gifford and Fred Benners add to the striking power in the backfield and Bud Sherrod, an end, and Done Menasco, a halfback, fill in on the defensive platoon. "This is a team that can pop from any place at any time and go all the way," says Owen.

Giants Home Schedule

Oct. 19	Chicago Cardinals (Long Island Day)
Oct. 26	Philadelphia Eagles (New Jersey Day)
Nov. 9	San Francisco 49ers (Connecticut Day)
Nov. 16	Green Bay Packers (Westchester-N. Y. State Day)
Dec. 7	Washington Redskins (Greater N. Y.-Washington Day)
Dec. 14	Cleveland Browns

All games start at 2:05 P.M.

STEVE OWEN

The Giants had a reasonably easy time in their opener at Dallas, scored in every period while routing the Eagles in Philadelphia and then, last Sunday, met their arch rivals, the Cleveland Browns.

Those who saw the telecast over WABD (Channel 5) or heard the broadcast over WMGM (all road games will be telecast and all games will be broadcast) know what a great game it was and what an important victory for the Giants. For, it has been the Browns who twice have nosed the Giants out of the American Division title and, once again this year, the Browns figure to be the team the Giants must beat.

Out of that game came other heartening results for the Giants. Kyle Rote, the Mighty Mustang from S. M. U., who had his pro debut last year cut short by a knee injury, had the knee operated on last spring. He has been slow in coming around, gaining strength in the knee. But, now he is ready, as he proved by sparking a second-half offense against the Browns, one of the toughest defensive clubs in the league, with 62 yards in nine carries.

And Eddie Price, the league's leading ground-gainer last year, is moving again. He has racked up 316 yards rushing on 54 carries for an average of 5.9 yards. Charlie Conerly's shoulder injury which hampered him last year is healed and he's throwing well, with a touchdown a game.

So, this could be the year. The players think it will be. Come on out and give them your support and help bring the Giants the National Football League championship.

Rookies Spark Giant Attack

FIVE new faces in the starting offensive line-up and four more rookies right behind them to keep the fires burning! As a result, the offensive flames of your New York Football Giants figures to burn briskly and with spectacular highlights this year.

Already having astounded observers around the league with the explosiveness of their attack, the Giants offer as their No. 1 backfield rookie Southern California's Frank Gifford, top collegiate runner and triple threat man last season and the New Yorkers' first selection in the draft of last fall's collegiate seniors.

But, while Gifford adds running power and finesse, one of the main reasons the New York attack, which still boasts such veterans as Eddie Price, league-leading ground gainer last year, Kyle Rote, Joe Scott and Chuckin' Charley Conerly, has exploded is the addition of fast, hard-charging and blocking rookies at tackles and guards.

Dick Yelvington, former Georgia ace who came to the Giants after a hitch in the service, is the starting right tackle and on the left side the No. 1 boy is Hal Mitchell, from U. C. L. A. Ray Beck, of Georgia Tech, mentioned on practically every All-America squad, is the regular left guard and on the other side of center George Kennard, from Kansas, and Bob Patton, former Clemson captain, share the assignment.

Sometimes, in following the ball carrier, it's hard to see the fine work done in the line, but as Steve Owen, the Giants' veteran coach says, "Plays we couldn't make work last year are going for good gainers this season because we have those new kids up front who can block and are fast enough to get out in front of the play." Watch them, Nos. 72, 66, 65, 67 and 61.

The other three rookies on the squad are no mean shakes in themselves. One is Fred Benners, the nation's top collegiate passer last year at S. M. U. He's learning to be a quarterback and is progressing rapidly. He can pass, no one can doubt that, and a couple of his completions against the Eagles were the bullet type straight to the hands of a receiver apparently blanketed by the defense. He can thread a needle with the ball.

Then there is Bud Sherrod, a top defensive end who played at Tennessee and just this summer was discharged from the Air Force. A hard rusher and deadly tackler, he plays rarely on offense but is a valuable man on the defensive platoon. The ninth rookie is Don Menasco, a defensive halfback from Texas who some feel can tackle as hard as Em Tunnell. That's hard!

Gifford is the fireworks boy. He can run and hit hard with his 190-pound, 6-foot-1 frame. But the defense can't play him just for running. The guy can pass also. The first pass he threw this year, at Philadelphia, was an 18-yarder to Bob McChesney good for a touchdown. New York fans got their first look at him in the exhibition game against the Los Angeles Rams when he broke loose for a 60-yard run.

What makes these boys even more valuable is the fact that by posing an added threat to the defense they'll take a great deal of pressure off Price and Conerly. To date Price is well ahead of the yardage he made last year when he was top man in the league.

Meet the Giants

Eddie Price (31), who sets all manner of ground-gaining records at Tulane, is well on his way to similar accomplishments in the NFL. Fourth among the NFL ball-carriers with 703 yards in his rookie season, the Blond Bullet led the parade as a pro sophomore last year by racing 971 yards in an unprecedented 271 attempts. A compact 190-pounder, he hits hard and has breakaway speed in the open.

Ray Poole (82), a member of one of football's most famous families, is carrying on a tradition founded by his brother Jim in supplying the Giants with devastating defensive end play. Another brother, Barney, also was a college All-America and pro star. Now in his sixth season with the Giants, Ray blossomed out two years ago as a place-kicking specialist and has developed into one of the game's best FG and PAT men.

Charley Conerly

Charley Conerly (42), calling the Giant signals for the fifth year, has made a complete recovery from the shoulder injury that hampered his passing in 1951. That's bad news for the rest of the league because Chucking Charley ranks as one of the best college and pro passers of all time. Formerly a single-wing tailback, Conerly is no hothouse quarterback but a genuine triple-threat.

Arnie Weinmeister (73) has earned the right to the designation of Mr. Tackle in five brilliant seasons of pro play, three with the Giants. This mobile, hard-hitting giant is one of those rare linemen who captivates the crowd the way a great runner or passer does. His speed, intuition and competitive spark keep him in the spotlight from kick-off to final gun.

Ray Poole

Arnie Weinmeister

Joe Scott

Joe Scott (30), five years a Giant, has survived a series of crippling injuries to become one of football's foremost halfbacks. A hard-hitting, high-stepping runner who is deceptively fast and elusive, he is a constant threat on A-formation reverses and T-formation thrusts. Also a crack pass-receiver, he's one of Charley Conerly's prime targets when the Giants take to the air.

Em Tunnell (45), another fifth-year Giant, is perhaps the strongest spoke in Steve Owen's famed umbrella defensive secondary. Fast, alert and combatative, he roams far and wide to make rib-rocking tackles and bat down or intercept passes. In addition, Em is a terror at returning punts and kick-offs. He ran a kick-off back 100 yards and set a NFL record by handling 34 punts for 489 yards in 1951.

Em Tunnell

MATSON HEADS CARDINAL CAST

OLIE MATSON
Six-two, 210 and Fast!

FOR football action at its thrilling best, you'd have to go far to top that produced in the post-war meetings of the Giants and the Cardinals. In eight contests since 1946, these two clubs have scored the staggering total of 442 points—231 by the Giants, who won six of the games, and 211 by the Cardinals, turned back by four, four and three points in three of their losing battles.

This rebuilt Cardinal team, which upset the mighty Bears, 21-10, two weeks ago, is shaping up as the strongest South Side squad since the outfit which captured the NFL title in 1947 and repeated as Western Division champion in 1948. It has the same exciting qualities as those dynamic Jimmy Conzelman machines, with the emphasis on attacking speed and striking power.

Joe Kuharich, a great guard for the Cardinals from 1940 to 1945 and a highly successful coach at San Francisco University until that institution dropped football last year, has taken charge at Comiskey Park and has blended a combination of new talent and old into a team that has the whole league buzzing.

Chief cause of all the hubbub is a 6-foot-2, 210-pound rookie fullback named Ollie Matson. This big youngster not only was an All-America halfback at San Francisco but established himself as one of the world's best footracers by placing third at 400 meters and running a scorching 1600-meter relay leg in last Summer's Olympics.

An authentic 9.6-second sprinter (as distinguished from any halfback who ever put on a track shoe), Matson has breathed new vitality into the Cardinal attack with his blazing speed and power.

Playing on both offense and defense against the Bears, Ollie beat them practically single-handed. Among other things, he bolted 100 yards to a touchdown on a kick-off return, stole a fumble and promptly dashed 34 yards to another score.

Besides this brilliant rookie, the Cardinals have another freshman star in Johnny Karras of Illinois' Rose Bowl victors and such tried-and-true backfield aces as Charley Trippi, Elmer Angsman, Emil Sitko and Joe Geri, triple-threat workhorse of the Steelers for the past few seasons.

There will be a lot of pressure on the Giant defense today. These Cardinals are explosive!

ADRIAN BURK

JOHN BREWER

HERE next Sunday, on New Jersey Day at the Polo Grounds, will be the Philadelphia Eagles, 1948 and 1949 champions of the National League, still one of the circuit's most formidable powers and a rival that seldom has failed to make it interesting for the Giants.

Coached this year by Jim Trimble, the Eagles will present such old favorites as Clyde (Smackover) Scott, Frank Ziegler, Adrian Burk, Pete Pihos, Al Pollard, Chuck Bednarik, Vic Sears, Bobby Walston and Russ Craft, plus a strong group of newcomers headed by Tommy Thomason, top percentage passer in the league with Green Bay last year, and a pair of battering rookie fullbacks, 230-pound John Brewer, who ran 70 yards to a touchdown against the Giants in Philadelphia two weeks ago, and 240-pound John Huzvar.

Until the Giants turned the tide with 7-3 and 9-7 victories in 1950 and 26-24 and 23-7 triumphs in 1951, the Eagles had beaten them in six straight games and ten out of twelve over a six-year period. Still smarting at the sting of the 31-7 pounding they received in the first 1952 meeting of the teams, the Philadelphians will be going all out to reverse the trend of the see-saw series.

Giant Jottings

MORE fans than ever before will follow the New York Football Giants this year. A far-flung radio and television network will bring all Giant games to listeners and viewers throughout New York State and New England. A new arrangement this season provides for the local telecasting (over WABD-TV, Channel 5) of all Giant road games. This will enable Giant fans to keep abreast of developments in games which they cannot attend. Home games, of course, will not be televised locally but those who can't get to the Polo Grounds will be able to tune in WMGM, which will present Marty Glickman's play-by-play description, as in the past. The Miller Brewing Company and the Atlantic Refining Company are sponsoring these broadcasts and telecasts.

Senior member of the 1952 Giants is Joe Sulaitis. The Jersey Jolter, one of the few pro football stars to crash the big league without the benefit of college experience, has played every position in nine seasons with the Polo Grounders . . . Ray Poole, John Cannady and Tex Coulter are in their sixth year with the Giants. . . . Over-all, though, this is one of the youngest Giant teams ever. The 33-man squad includes nine pro freshmen and seven sophomores.

Appreciating that many of their followers come from out of town and can't conveniently buy tickets at the club's 11 West Forty-second Street office, the Giants have set aside special blocks of good seats for mail orders. You can send for tickets in full confidence that you will receive the best locations available. There's an application blank for mail orders on page 15 of this program.

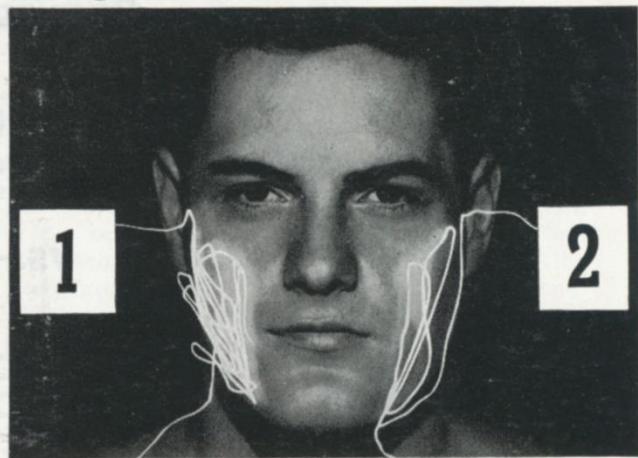

Fred Benners, Giant rookie quarterback from S. M. U., is studying law at N. Y. U. . . . Coach Steve Owen predicts that Bob Wilkinson, an All-America end at U. C. L. A. two years ago, will be an All-League halfback before his pro career is over. Wilkinson is the fastest Giant, quite an honor because this Giant team has a lot of fast-steppers. . . . The "umbrella" defense with which the Giants have had so much success in covering enemy passes has been adopted by a number of leading college teams. This emphasizes Steve Owen's stature as a football innovator. Gridiron travelers also frequently run across the A-formation, another Owen original, which still is part of the Giant repertoire.

For the Comfort of All

To insure the comfort of all attending Giant home games, it is requested that ticket-holders take their seats by way of the entrance ramps leading to the sections in which they are located. These ramps are plainly marked. Avoid walking in front of other sections en route to your seats.

SCOUTING AROUND . . . . . With Jack Lavelle

I SAW Ollie Matson make that 100 yard kick-off return against the Bears. He took the ball with one foot in the end zone, went roaring up to the 35-yard line on a slight angle, then broke out to the right sideline and ran away from everyone. . . . Matson is likely to do that anytime. I've never seen anyone who can get to the outside so fast. Thank heavens he was running for us instead of Russia in the Olympics.

You don't realize how fast Matson moves because he's a big fellow with a long stride. . . . After that run, a Chicago buddy who knows I'm interested in track, told me that it had taken Matson just 14 seconds on his stopwatch to travel from goal to goal. Considering that Ollie covered at least 125 yards, that's really whirling. Don't ever let anyone sell you the idea that anyone can run a 10-flat 100 in football uniform with a ball under his arm.

The Cardinals have a terrific collection of backs. They're likely to get the distance anytime. . . . You'll get a kick out of Billy Cross. He weighs only 155 but he can really scoot and he's slippery as an eel. . . . Charley Trippi is at quarterback this year and he puts the defense on the rack. He not only passes well but you never know when he is going to tuck the ball and run with it. He went 59 yards against the Bears on one of his pass-run options.

The Cardinals still have Elmer Angsman, one of my favorite backs (I don't have to play against him) and Red Sitko, another good Notre Damer, and since last year they picked up Joe Ceri, who used to do everything but sell tickets for the Steelers. . . . Stonesifer and Polsfoot are tough ends to cover on passes and they have a lot of speed in the line. . . . I've told Steve and the boys they are in for a busy day.

I see where Bert Bell said that "The toughest football ever played in the National League" is being played this year. . . . Bert has been around a little longer (twenty years or so) but I agree with him. Every club is stronger and there are fine new players all around the circuit. Just to mention a few beside Matson, there's McElhenny of San Francisco, who has a chance to become one of the really great running backs; Renfro of Cleveland, who may be even faster than Matson; Babe Parilli of Green Bay, and Bishop, a big boy who has the sharpest teeth in that new Bear line that specializes in chewing people up. . . . There are no soft touches in this league anymore. You have to put it on the line every Sunday.

TODAY'S PREDICTIONS: After last year, I should keep my mouth shut, but here goes anyway: Cleveland over Philadelphia (Paul Brown takes a dim view of losing two in a row); Los Angeles over Detroit (if Walker and Harder play it might be the Lions); San Francisco over the Bears (Buck Shaw never has beaten George Halas; it's about time); Dallas over Green Bay (they played last night and if I'm wrong you can ignore everything I've said before).
