The "All-American" Team

The brands all America selects for its smoking pleasure

Back to Work

IT was a disappointment but hardly a shock that the Giants lost to the Steelers. That's the hard, cruel way of life in the rough, tough National Football League. Some days you're up, some days you're down and some days it doesn't make much difference how you are because the other team is invincible.

In retrospect, that's about what happened in Pittsburgh. The automatic reaction after the defeat by the Steelers was to say, with a sigh, "Oh well, the Giants had a letdown after those big victories over the Browns and the Colts. Too bad but it figured."

With Alex Webster, Don Heinrich, Roosevelt Brown and Jack Stroud out of the line-up with injuries and other mainstays of both platoons battered physically to a point where they were operating at reduced efficiency, the Giants did not begin to match the form they displayed against Cleveland and Baltimore.

KYLE ROTE

However, it should not be forgotten that they were playing against the hottest team in the league. Always tough defensively, the Steelers have meshed into a potent offensive force under the direction of Bobby Layne and, in beating the Giants, hung up their third straight victory.

Despite the final result, there were some bright spots for Coach Jim Lee Howell in Pittsburgh. The Giants were an efficient looking outfit in seizing a 10-0 lead in the first twenty-five minutes of the game.

Frank Gifford demonstrated that he has almost completely recovered from his knee injury. Phil King did another fine job, as a fill-in for Webster. The rookie linemen, Frank Youso and Bob Mischaik, added to the good impression they have made over the season. Cliff Livingston made tackles all over the lot from the left linebacker spot. Don Chandler punted sensationaly.

Drained emotionally and downright exhausted after their tremendous efforts on the previous two Sundays, the Giants could not hold the pace over the full route. But it was encouraging, at least, to see that they had not completely lost their touch.

The problem now is clear. To stay in the race, the Giants can afford no more letdowns. Kyle Rote and his companions of the offensive platoon must keep the ball moving for longer periods. Bill Svoboda and his cohorts of the defensive platoon must maintain more constant pressure.

Today's game with the Redskins shapes up as one of the key contests of the season. If the Giants can repeat their 21-14 Washington victory over the 'Skins, they will be in a strong position to launch a stretch drive for the flag.

Back to work, men!

Phil King—Man of Many Talents

Giant Rookie Has Proved Capable at Fullback as Well as Halfback

FEW football players ever have reached the big time with as many qualifications as the Giants' versatile rookie halfback Phil King.

King, 6 feet 4, 223 pounds, a 10-second dash man, has the big four—brains, brawn, speed and desire. Also, pro football fits in exactly with the long term plans the personable Vanderbilt youngster has made for his life.

Asked whether he preferred to play fullback or halfback, King replied: "I don't care where I play, just so long as I play." As a collegian, he made runs of 88 and 76 yards, plus others that were shorter, but resulted in the same six points.

"I prefer running inside," he said. "When you try to sweep the ends, you run a long way without gaining any ground, before you cut downfield. When you go through the middle you're gaining with every step. It just takes maybe one block and you're gone."

The Giants use King at fullback as well as halfback because of his size, plus the need to have a fullback who is a skilled receiver. King has the range and speed of an end, together with a world of power. These qualities make him an excellent spare wheel in the Giant backfield. He also is a capable punter.

As a collegian he was named to the Senior Bowl and Blue-Grey Games (in the latter he combined with fellow rookie Don Maynard to score all Grey points in a 21-20 victory). He played with Vanderbilt in the Gator Bowl and starred for the College All-Stars as they trounced the Detroit Lions.

That game was his baptism as a pro. He names it his top football thrill so far.

As for brains, King plans to become a lawyer. His degree is in business administration and he will enter law school as soon as possible, either in New York, or at Vanderbilt. He is married and the father of an infant daughter.

Law school must wait for a while. An ROTC second lieutenant in the Transportation Corps, he will enter the army for six months training next January. This will enable him to report to the Giants'

An Embryonic Lawyer, the Vanderbilt Alumnus Also Is a Skilled Musician

camp next summer without missing a season.

Thus he would need perhaps five years to complete his law courses. He not only loves football, but sees in it a way to finance his future. He is 22 years old.

Also under the "brains" category, the former Vanderbilt captain and No. 1 draft choice of the Giants has been playing the clarinet since he was eleven years old.

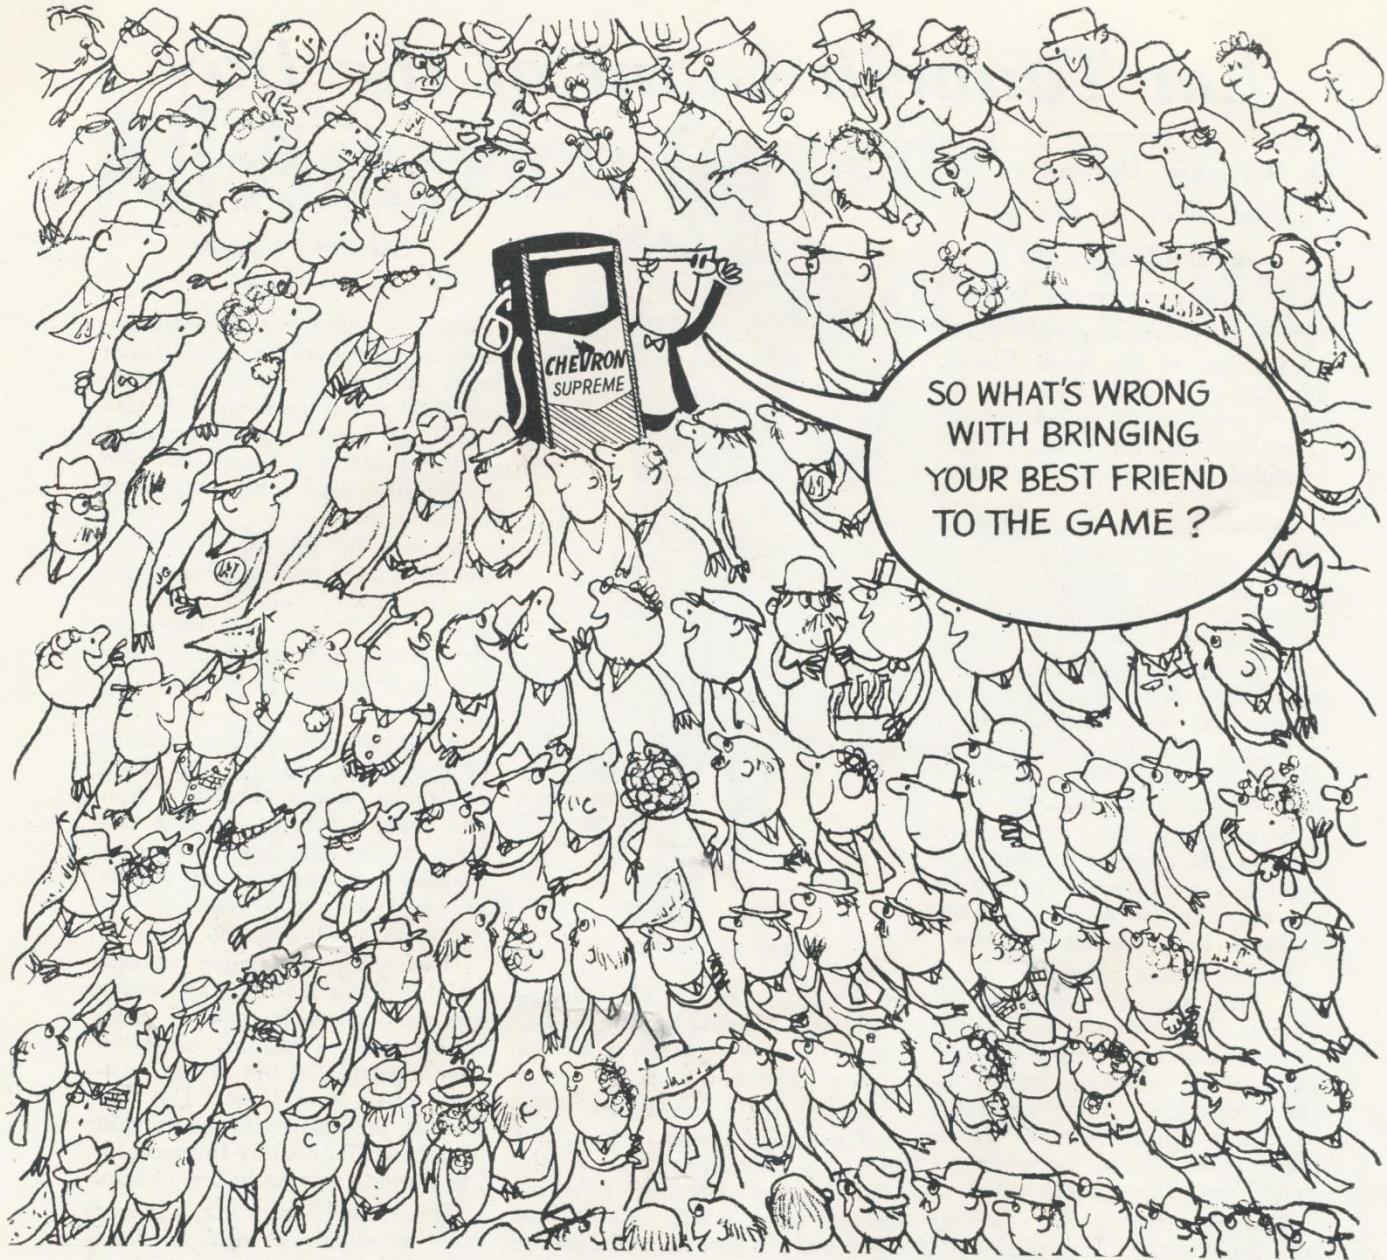

"But as soon as I got to high school, why of course I was on the football team, so I was never able to play in a full-fledged band. I still play at home, for myself and my wife Pat, mostly."

King says he likes all kinds of music, from Mantovani to the classics, except "country music, which I can't stand," and opera, which he feels he does not know sufficiently yet. "You don't get much opportunity to go to the opera in Knoxville," he says. He is addicted to hi-fi and has an elaborate rig at home.

Known as "The Chief," because he is part Indian, King was described by one Vanderbilt enthusiast as a player who "runs with the speed of a deer and hits with the crunching power of the buffalo."

Judging from his play in his increasingly frequent appearances with the Giants, the intelligent, soft-spoken Tennessean is every bit as hard to bring down as the above description implies.

Giant Album

Charley Conerly

In a decade of stalwart service with the Giants, Charley Conerly (42) has won respect as one of pro football's great competitors. Going into this season, the former All-America from Ole Miss has thrown 134 TD passes. Only Sam Baugh (187) and Sid Luckman (139) had more. Originally a single-wing tailback, Charley has made himself over into a polished T quarterback.

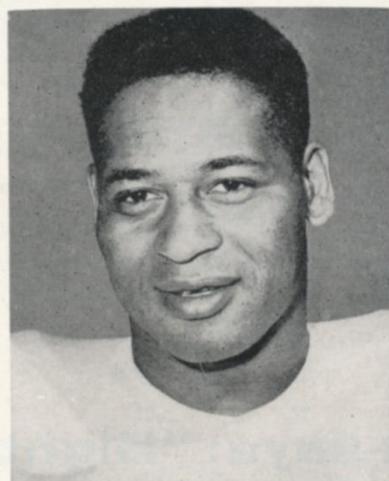

Lindon Crow

Lindon Crow (41) is a new Giant but an old hand at pro football. An all-around star at USC, he was the Cardinals' No. 2 draft choice in 1955 and played regularly at defensive halfback for the Chicago South Siders for three seasons, leading the league in pass interceptions in 1956. The Giants got him, with Pat Summerall, for Dick Nolan and Bob Conrad last summer.

Frank Youso

Frank Youso (82), No. 2 on the Giants' 1958 draft list, is rapidly justifying his early selection. Rushed into action at right tackle on the offensive line, he has been more than pulling his 260-pound weight. Minnesota, which has sent a string of fine tackles to the Giants, was Frank's school.

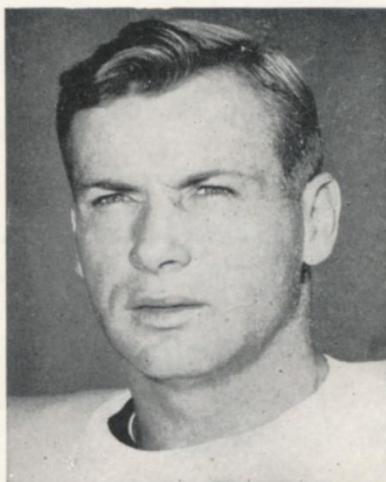

Emlen Tunnell

After ten years of hell-for-leather defensive play, Emlen Tunnell (45) has retired from the regular Giant line-up. Over the years, there have been few more exciting defensemen than this blazing competitor from Iowa. Em set all manner of records and gained the fantastic total of 4,653 yards on punt, kick-off and interception returns.

Pat Summerall

George Allen Summerall (88), more familiarly known as Pat, is a 7-year pro who came to the Giants from the Cardinals in a 1958 pre-season trade. A long-range place-kicking specialist whose 250 NFL points include field goals of 50 and 49 yards, he is also is serviceable as a defensive end.

Bob Schnelker

Bob Schnelker (85) has been a fixture at end for the Giants ever since they acquired him in a 1954 trade with the Eagles. The big blond from Bowling Green is a fast, powerful, sure-fingered pass-catcher, who is at his best under pressure. Going into this season he had grabbed 84 Giant passes, for 1448 yards and 16 TDs.

— Guess which drink is better for you? —

Fizzless highball

1. Big feature, easy to make. Turn the tap, fill the glass. No longer socially acceptable, lacking in good taste.

2. What happened to the flavor of the liquor? A lifeless, bland drink.

3. Flatter than a pancake! Wishy-washy... Your very best bet... start afresh.

4. Sparkling mixers save you money and trouble. Every drink tastes great... better for you too.

Sparkling highball

1. Big feature... delectable taste. Costs more than tap water... but worth 5 times as much... Why?

2. Makes a lively drink every time. Makes any liquor taste terrific!

3. The drink comes alive with flavor. Money saving... You bet! Why?

4. No wasted drinks... no disappointed drinkers. You're traveling first class with Canada Dry Mixers.

Research says: "Highballs with sparkling mixers are better for you"

Here's why—It's the lively bubbles!

1. They speed the liquid through your system 80% faster than plain water.
2. They aid your digestion.
3. They curb unpleasant aftereffects.

Only Canada Dry Mixers have exclusive "Pin-Point Carbonation"—livelier, longer-lasting bubbles. Also superior flavor, from secret formulas, improve the taste of any liquor.

Eagles Here Next Sunday

BILL BARNES

The Giants have a little job of score-settling to do next Sunday. That's when they play their return game with the Eagles, who were inhospitable enough to defeat them, 27-24, in Philadelphia.

Coached this year by Buck Shaw, one of pro football's old masters, and quarterbacked by Norm Van Brocklin, one of the National League's top passers for a decade, the Eagles are a more formidable force than they have been for some time.

They have perked up particu-

larly on attack. The addition of Van Brocklin to those strong young runners, Bill Barnes and Clarence Peaks, has given them a ground-air balance that commands high respect.

The 1958 Eagles also have considerably more depth than in the past. Sonny Jurgensen, another capable quarterback, supports Van Brocklin. Walt Kowalczyk, Michigan State's 1957 All-America, and Billy Wells, formerly with the Steelers and Redskins, also are explosive runners.

Pete Retzlaff, previously a defensive specialist, has blossomed out as a crack pass-receiver as flanker back, a position he shares with elusive Tommy McDonald, Bobby Walston and Andy Nacrelli, the old Fordham star (remember when Fordham had a football team), are other favorite targets of the sharpshooting Van Brocklin.

The Giant defense will have to be sharp to stand off this array of talent and the presence of such stalwarts as Tom Scott on the Eagle defensive platoon also will put heavy pressure on the Giant Attack. It all adds up to another rousing pro football show at the Stadium.

Jottings on the Giants

TODAY'S between-halves entertainment will be provided by the Burlington (Vermont) High School Band. The Giants had an opportunity to observe this crack marching unit in action when they used to train at St. Michael's College in Burlington. They were impressed with what they saw. So will you be, they think. Give these talented youngsters from the Green Mountains a warm reception.

Alex Webster and Dick Modzelewski will step to front and center today to receive watches as the offensive and defensive heroes, respectively, of the game with the Colts two weeks ago. The Longines-Wittenauer Watch Company will present these awards at each Giant home game.... Listen in on "Giant Radio Huddle" on CBS each Thursday night at 10 P.M.

More than 500 friends and followers from East Brunswick, N. J., will give Alex Webster a "day" at the Stadium next Sunday, in conjunction with the game against the Philadelphia Eagles.... Next Sunday qualifies as the social highlight of the Giant season. Also scheduled is the Section Five Club dinner at the Hotel Concourse Plaza after the game. Tickets may be obtained at Section Five Club headquarters, Room 229, Hotel Concourse Plaza. Coach Jim Lee Howell and all the Giants will attend.

A number of the Giants plan to stay in New York the year round and will be available for post-season employment. Anyone who's interested in hustling, forceful sales or executive talent will do well to look into the possibility of hiring a Giant. Direct inquiries to the Giant office, 10 Columbus Circle, New York 19, N. Y. The phone number is JU 2-7272.

Roy Campanella and Monty Irvin head the committee for "Emlen Tunnell Day," which will be celebrated on Dec. 14, when the Giants play the Browns. Friends and followers of the veteran Giant defensive star are invited to send contributions to Tunnell Day Headquarters, Room 228, 60 East Forty-second Street.

Giant Album

Jim Patton

In four seasons as a Giant, Jim Patton (20) has quietly but emphatically attained star stature. Only 180 pounds but quick as a cat on his feet and a never-miss tackler, the Ole Miss speedboy now rates as the stiffest spoke in the Giant defensive umbrella. Well-briefed enemy passers take pains to avoid attacking the right safety sector he so ably patrols.

Carl Karilivacz

Carl Karilivacz (21), a Glen Cove, L. I., native who attended Syracuse University, put in five seasons of stellar service with the Detroit Lions before he was acquired by the Giants in a 1958 pre-season trade. Fast, alert and knowing, he moved right into the defensive line-up at right halfback. Played end on Syracuse's Orange Bowl team of 1953.

Alex Webster

Alex Webster (29), cast off by the Redskins in 1953, came to the Giants in 1955 after two brilliant seasons in Canada. The big North Carolina State graduate has been a great runner for the Giants. Through 1957, he had rushed for 1806 yards, caught 73 passes for 796 more yards and scored 22 TDs.

Cliff Livingston

Cliff Livingston (89) doesn't often appear in the starting line-up but the rugged U. C. L. A. graduate has made himself valuable to the Giants in many ways over the past five years. He's a dependably spare linebacker and end and a kick-blocking terror on the special-purpose platoons. His brother, Howie, preceded him on the Giants.

Mel Triplett

Mel Triplett (33), a No. 5 draft choice in 1955, has supplied the Giants with a wallop at fullback that long had been lacking. He's a riproaring runner and a lethal blocker who is particularly effective at protecting the passer. A graduate of the University of Toledo, where he was football captain in 1954.

Dick Modzelewski

Dick Modzelewski (77), joined the Giants in 1956 after dividing three previous pro seasons between Washington and Pittsburgh. A rugged, willing 260-pounder, he's a fixture on the defensive rush line. "Little Mo," a product of Maryland, represents an ideal combination of the immovable object and irresistible force.

Looking Over the Redskins

EDDIE LE BARON

LIKE every National Football League team, the Redskins are capable of beating any opponent on any given day. Coach Joe Kuharich's current Washington team is particularly well-endowed with attacking weapons and, in the final analysis, it is attack that wins football games. No one yet has figured a way to win without scoring.

The Redskins' ability to score commands the highest respect. They are a versatile bunch, who can light up the scoreboard early and often by running, by passing and by place-kicking.

The littlest brave among the Redskins is the big chief of the Capitol tribe. The warrior in question, of course, is Eddie LeBaron. There's no more colorful quarterback in football than this amazingly deft, resourceful and nervy 5-foot 7-inch 165-pound graduate of the College of the Pacific.

No one since Frankie Albert performs greater wonders of prestidigitation than LeBaron and Eddie backs up his shell-and-pea-game ball-handling with pin-point passing. For example, the little guy fired five touchdown passes against the Cardinals a couple of Sundays ago. Runner-up to Cleveland's Tommy O'Connell last year, he's making a strong run for the league passing title this season.

It helps LeBaron's passing that Washington has what it believes is the best set of running backs in the league. Ed Sutton, Don Busseler and Jim Podoley, who comprise the regular trio, are young, swift 200-pounders who gobble up yardage in big chunks from the Kuharich version of the unbalanced line, "lonely end" T formation. They're all gifted pass-catchers, too, particularly the fleet Podoley, who has given the Giants a lot of trouble the last couple of years.

Other prime passing targets of the sharpshooting LeBaron are Johnny Carson and Joe Walton, an All-America end at Pittsburgh a few years back. Carson, very fast afoot, is what is described in the trade as a "long end." Walton is a wizard at getting open in tight quarters and specializes in diving catches.

Washington has good backfield depth. Ralph Guglielmi, of Notre Dame fame, is a capable understudy for LeBaron. Bert Zagers, Joe Scudero, Sid Watson and Dick

JOE KUHARICH

James are experienced spare halfbacks and a rookie from Tennessee named Bill Anderson, who doubles at halfback and end, also has shown to advantage. Then, the acquisition of hard-hitting Johnny Olszewski from the Cardinals has provided another inside threat.

Another important cog in the Redskin attack is Sam Baker. This big boomer from Oregon State booted 14 field goals in 23 attempts last year to tie Cleveland's Lou Groza for the league scoring title with 77 points. Baker is an outstanding punter, too.

Washington's sturdy offensive line features Dick Stanfel, recognized for years as one of pro football's best running guards. There are a couple of perennial all-leaguers on the defensive line, too. They are big Chuck Drazenovich, at middle backer, and rough, tough Gene Brito at left end.

Make no mistake about it, this is a good Redskin team. The Giants will have to be at their best to stand up against it.

Over the years, few National Football League rivalries have stirred up as much furore as that between the Giants and the Redskins.

Ever since that memorable December day in 1937, when 10,000 war-whooping, feather-wearing Washington fans jarred Times Square from its Sunday morning somnolence by parading up Broadway behind a blaring band, there has been a special quality of excitement attached to Giant-Redskin games.

Led by the incomparable Sammy Baugh and Cliff Battles, the Redskins won that 1937 game, 49-14, repeating an earlier 13-3 victory in Washington.

Since, the Giants have had the upper hand. But as often as not, the games with the Redskins have been spine-tingling, see-saw, down-to-the-wire thrillers.

The Giants' 21-14 victory in Washington on Oct. 12 was in that tradition and more of the same may be expected today.

Giant Blackboard: A Capitol Play

As a change of pace, today's play diagram involves the opponents, instead of the Giants.

We're doing this for two reasons: 1) the Redskin attack is somewhat different, i.e., they are the only National League team whose basic formation involves an unbalanced line; 2) the Washington offense is a progenitor of sorts of the Army "lonely end" attack that has created such high excitement among the varsity set.

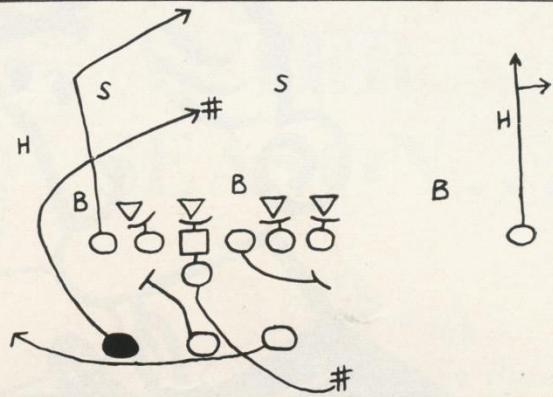

Except that their split end does enter the huddle, the Redskins have used for several seasons the same basic deployment that Army has adopted.

They run from an unbalanced line (four men on one side of center), with the long side end set out 15 to 18 yards. The backs either stay in regulation T alignment or a halfback may be flanked, most often in a wing or slot position on the same side as the open end.

This formation generates a lot of power to the strong side and also imposes on the defense the burden of added vigilance against counter-thrusts to the weak side, which necessarily must be left lightly guarded.

The play diagrammed is one that Eddie LeBaron, Washington's gifted little quarterback, works exceptionally well. It involves a pass off a feinted sweep to the short side.

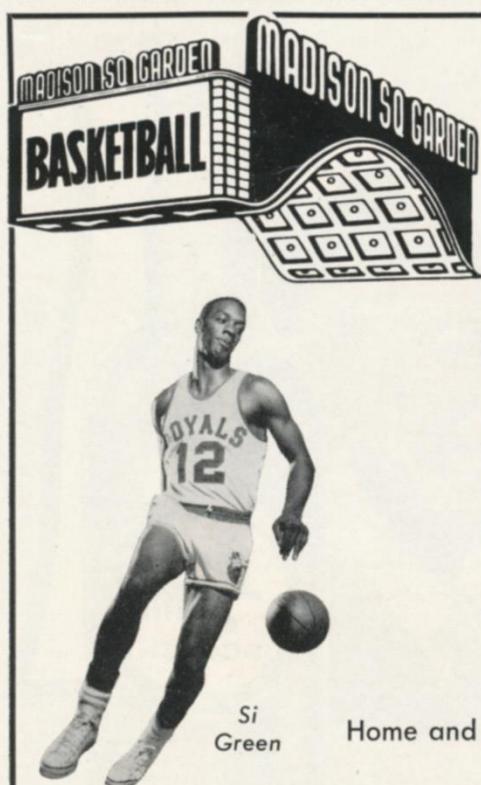

On taking the snap, LeBaron executes a reverse pivot to the left and rolls out to the right, faking hand-offs to the fullback and right halfback as he goes, with the right guard as a blocking convoy.

The left halfback moves initially as though to act as the lead blocker on a running play, then cuts sharply right to take a pass over the middle. Meanwhile the left end goes downfield and also breaks in. The isolated end may go straight downfield or run a "square-out" course. They are alternate receivers.

It's a tough pass pattern to stop. The defensive right halfback, right linebacker and middle linebacker must initially react to the faked runs.

That leaves it up to the safety men to cover the left end and left halfback man-to-man. With a good passer throwing to fast receivers who know where they are going, there's a lot of pressure on those isolated deep defenders.

National League Champions

In the National Football League's first twelve seasons, the champion was the team with the highest won-and-lost percentage. In 1933, the league was split into Eastern and Western divisions. Since then, the divisional champions have met after the regular season ends for pro football's "world championship."

MOON

Rare is the whiskey of such character and savor that it unfailingly offers complete and perfect pleasure. And if this triumph won't quite change the stars in their courses or shade a gold moon blue, at least it can win more advocates than any other whiskey in the world's history.

It can . . . and did. Its name is 7 Crown.

THEY SAID IT COULDN'T BE DONE BUT HERE IT IS!

"Couldn't be done, couldn't be done." Hardly anyone dreamed that 50,000,000 people would be able to enjoy a "Western" . . . in their own homes . . . on the same evening! But that's how many Americans watch "GUNSMOKE" . . . TV's most popular program, every Saturday on CBS-TV.

Less tars & More taste

DON'T SETTLE FOR ONE WITHOUT THE OTHER!

Change to L&M and get 'em both. Yes, today's L&M gives you the unbeatable combination of less tars and more taste! L&M's taste is so full and rich . . . it's a rare mixture of the Southland's finest cigarette tobaccos. And you get L&M's patented* filtering process — assuring you of less tars in the smoke, puff by puff, than ever before.

*Only L&M has U. S. patent number on the side of the pack. This patent (No. 2,805,671) covers L&M's exclusive process that electrostatically adds extra filtering fibers.
