"Tobacco IS OUR MIDDLE NAME"

CORO JEWELRY AWARD WINNERS: Frank Gifford and Sam Huff, outstanding on offense and defense against the Redskins.

HAIL to our Giants of the offense—and defense, too—for that magnificent Conerly Day exhibition against the Redskins last Sunday!

Seldom, if ever, have Jim Lee Howell's boys looked so swift, so strong, so sure in all departments as they did in that devastating first half when they piled up a 38-0 lead by scoring on six of the seven times they had possession.

It was a final, complete vindication of the contention here that there has never been anything wrong with the Giant attack that fit personnel wouldn't cure.

In the glow of a victory that assured them of at least a tie for the Eastern Conference title they are defending, the Giants remain acutely aware that there still is work to be done.

They'll attack the task of settling matters with grim determination today, because there would be special satisfaction in clinching the crown by defeating their chief challengers.

At the same time, it should be remembered that the Browns are a great football club and unques-

ALL THE WAY!

Ode to the Offense

(Editor's Note: Bob Sheppard, the irrepressible poet laureate of the public address system, is at it again. Incidentally, Bob penned this latest epic even before last Sunday.)

*The snap by Wietecha is crisp and clean,
The blocking by Stroud and Doss is neat,
While Youso and Brown go rocketing down
To knock the defenders right off their feet.
Schnelker and Rote are ready to float
To catch, to harry the secondary.
Gifford and Webster don't miss the boat,
They run and receive, as necessary.
Mel Triplett goes plummeting into that line
With a charge that shivers a tackler's spine.
While Conerly passes, and holds the ball tionally will take the field in an intractable mood after the two one-point defeats that dropped them out of a tie for the lead.

This is going to be a rugged test for the Giants and so could be the regular season's finale in Washington against the Redskins, who are a much better club than they showed here last Sunday.

Until the numbers run out, there can be no cork-popping. Whatever happens, though, we claim the right to salute these 1959 Giants as a great and game team. They have shown their greatness by such full-strength performances as last Sunday. They have shown their gameness by finding ways to win when all the odds were stacked against them.

The Giants of the field, of the coaching staff and of the front office in turn want to salute the great and game fans of New York, who have turned out in such numbers, in fair weather and foul, all season. It means a lot to a team to have that kind of support.

So, to all, a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year! And to the Giants, may they go all the way!

LATE NEWS FROM THE N. F. L. MEETING

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 30—The top Giant draft selections for 1960: Lou Cordileone, Clemson tackle; Jim Leo, Cincinnati end; George Blair, Mississippi halfback; Bob Yates, Syracuse tackle; Fred Hageman, Kansas center; Bob Anderson, Army halfback; Bob Simms, Rutgers end (plus Charlie Flowers, Mississippi fullback, and Henry Christopher, S. M. U. end, drafted as futures last year).

If the Giants should be tied for the Eastern Conference title by either the Browns or Eagles, the divisional play-off would be staged in Cleveland or Philadelphia on Sunday, December 20.

In the Center of Things

In Six Years at Pivot Post,
Ray Wietecha Has Missed
Few Blocks, No Minutes

“THREE are three things you can count on—death, taxes and Ray Wietecha at center,” a Giant fan observed recently.

To the concluding observation, Head Coach Jim Lee Howell, Offensive Coach Allie Sherman and Line Coach John Dell Isola utter a hearty “Amen.”

The Giants have counted on Wietecha heavily since 1954 and Ray has not let them down, for a minute. The durable Northwestern graduate hasn't missed a single offensive play since he was installed at center as a pro sophomore six years ago.

The manner in which Wietecha has defied physical erosion at a position that demands toughness, speed and stamina is advancing Ray toward rank with such fabled “iron man” centers as the peerless Mel Hein, who played fifteen seasons with the Giants, and Bulldog Turner, who served thirteen campaigns with the Bears.

Big Ray, who stands 6 foot 1, weighs 225 pounds and moves with catlike grace, has done a lot more than just be around for a long time. He's one of the best—the Giants say the very best—at the pivot post and has so been recognized by being named three times to the All-League and having twice been selected to play in the Pro Bowl.

Says Howell, “In my book, Ray is tops. Among other things, he makes a play few other centers even dare to attempt. That is to take out a defensive tackle alone on the side to which we are running. Most coaches consider this an impossible assignment because of the angle. But Wietecha is so quick and well-coordinated that he makes this block time and again.”

Wietecha poised for snap to

Says Sherman: “A center doesn't catch the eye much but he's a key man in T formation football. The way the game is played today there's more pressure on him than ever before. His snap must be crisp and accurate, or the whole timing of a play will be thrown out of kilter. Against the standard 4-3 defense, there seldom is an opposing lineman playing head to head against him, so he's usually obliged to block a moving target from a difficult angle. Also, he's the apex of the protective pocket on pass plays.”

Says Dell Isola: “Ray almost never makes a bad play. He always ranks at or near the top in the ratings for the weekly awards we give for blocking. I've never seen anyone who could match him for

Stalwart Northwestern Alumnus
Gaining Rank among Game's Foremost “Iron Men”

steady, consistent effort. That's important because in football it's the mistakes, more than anything else, that beat you. He rarely makes one.”

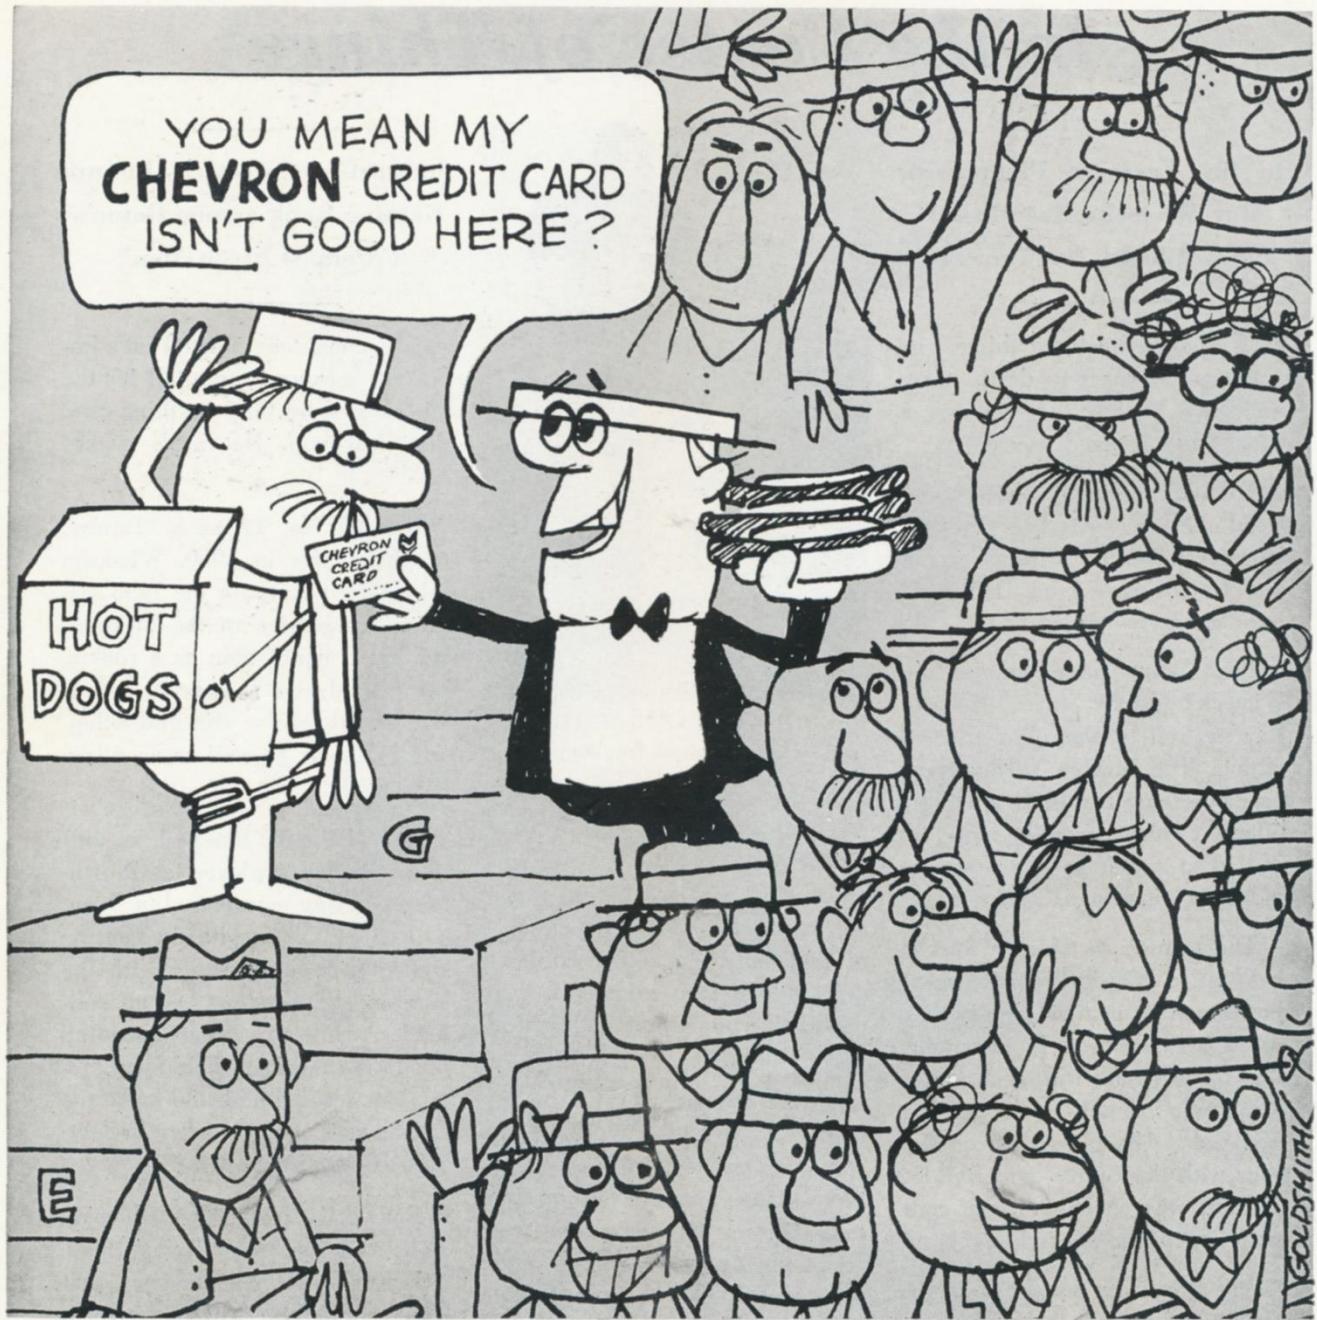

Drafted No. 12 as a “future” by the Giants in 1950, Wietecha joined the Giants for the 1953 season after service in the Marines. He was a handy-man as a rookie, being used as a linebacker, offensive and defensive end and defensive halfback, as well as an offensive center.

An All Big 10 baseball, as well as a football, player at Northwestern, Ray considered a baseball career for awhile. In fact, he signed a bonus contract with the Washington Senators as an outfielder. However, after spending the 1953 season in their farm system, he decided he could make the big leagues a lot quicker in football. How right he was!

Ray hails from East Chicago, Ind., and had been living there. However, since it's apparent that Yankee Stadium will continue to be his major place of business for some time, he and his bride of a few months have decided to become New York suburbanites. They recently purchased a home in Cranford, N. J. and this winter Wietecha will work out of there for a New Jersey drug concern.

His own robust resistance to illness and injury in seven stellar seasons with the Giants should be a strong selling point for the products he will be offering.

Harland Svare

Harland Svare (84), a 7-year pro from Washington State, who was acquired by the Giants in a 1954 trade with the Rams, has provided stalwart service to the defensive platoon as an outside linebacker. He's a superior play diagnostician and one of the league's fiercest tacklers. Under the Giants' varying defensive patterns, he often covers in the flat on passes. While so doing, he picked off one for a key 70-yard scoring interception against the Eagles.

Giant Album

Rosey Brown

Back in 1952, the Giants took a flyer on the twenty-seventh round of the draft and picked a 19-year-old tackle from Morgan State College named Rosey Brown (79). Someone in the Giant office must have had a crystal ball. Within a couple of years, Rosey was the best offensive tackle in the league. Lighting fast and 245 pounds, he blocks with crisp decisiveness. He also pitches in on defense, as middle guard, in short-yardage situations.

Jim Patton

Jim Patton (20) was almost turned down by the Giants when he came out of Mississippi five years ago. He weighed only 180 pounds and the feeling was that he'd never be able to stand the gaff of pro football physically. But Patton, all whalebone and whipcord small as he is, soon proved otherwise. His speed, alertness and wonderful anticipation have won him all-league rating at safety for the last two years.

Cliff Livingston

For the first time in his six years with the Giants, Cliff Livingston (89) is playing regularly. He has been starting at left linebacker on the defensive platoon. Up to this season, Cliff was a valuable jack-of-all-trades who filled in anywhere he was needed on the defensive unit and was a key member of the special duty platoons. Like his brother, Howie, a star Giant end of the past, Cliff attended U. C. L. A.

Dick Modzelewski

Dick Modzelewski (77), who came to the Giants in 1956 by way of Maryland, the Redskins and Packers, has been a tower of strength at defensive left tackle ever since. Little Mo, so-called because his older brother, Ed, a fullback with the Browns, is known as Big Mo, is an indomitable charger who puts his 260 pounds to effective use. Built close to the ground, he's hard to block out.

Lindon Crow

Lindon Crow (41), a No. 2 draft choice of the Cardinals in 1955, was acquired by the Giants in a 1958 trade. Fast, rugged and knowing, he has turned in a solid job as left corner man in the secondary defense. The league-leading pass interceptor in 1956, the U. S. C. graduate has made some important steals for the Giants, notably the end zone grab that helped beat the Browns a few weeks back.

--- Guess which drink is better for you? ---

Fizzless highball

1. Big feature, easy to make. Turn the tap, fill the glass. No longer socially acceptable, lacking in good taste.

2. What happened to the flavor of the liquor? A lifeless, bland drink.

3. Flat'er than a pancake! Wishy-washy... Your very best bet... start afresh.

4. Sparkling mixers save you money and trouble. Every drink tastes great... better for you too.

Sparkling highball

1. Big feature ... delectable taste. Costs more than tap water ... but worth 5 times as much ... Why?

2. Makes a lively drink every time. Makes any liquor taste terrific!

3. The drink comes alive with flavor. Money saving... You bet! Why?

4. No wasted drinks... no disappointed drinkers. You're traveling first class with Canada Dry Mixers.

Research says: "Highballs with sparkling mixers are better for you" ---

Here's why—It's the lively bubbles!

1. They speed the liquid through your system 80% faster than plain water.
2. They aid your digestion.
3. They curb unpleasant aftereffects.

Only Canada Dry Mixers have exclusive "Pin-Point Carbonation"—livelier, longer-lasting bubbles. Also superior flavor, from secret formulas, improve the taste of any liquor.

Jottings on the Giants

TODAY'S half-time entertainment will be provided by the Burlington (Vt.) High School Band. This 134-piece outfit is one of the best in New England. The boys and girls from the Green Mountains and the Giants were mutually impressed with each other by association at the Giants' pre-season training camp at St. Michael's College, in Winooski Park, near Burlington, during the past few summers. So this is by way of being a reunion.

The Giants will have strong rooting representation at Washington next Sunday when they conclude their regular schedule against the Redskins. Bryan Maher, who organized the junket, says response has been overwhelming for the Giant Fans Excursion to the Capitol City. The party will leave from the Concourse Plaza Hotel in chartered busses at 11:30 A.M. next Saturday, and return at 9:30 P.M. on Sunday. A cocktail party in honor of the Giants is scheduled at the Hotel DuPont Plaza in Washington, team headquarters, on Saturday evening. Tariff is $19.75, including transportation, hotel (two to a room; add $2 for a single room) and cocktail party. Check the Maher Travel Bureau at the Concourse Plaza (CY 3-4848) on the availability of reservations. There was a Dec. 1 deadline on applications but a few spots may still be open.

Jim Lee Howell's varied abilities include the greenest thumb in Englewood, N. J. Many of his chrysanthemums grew as high as the proverbial elephant's eye, and as big around as the moon, this fall. . . . Frank Youso, the Giants' rising young offensive tackle, hails from International Falls, Minn., which also produced the great Bronko Nagurski. . . . A Merry Christmas and Happy New Year to all!

The Bermuda-length jumper dresses worn by the Giants' cheerleaders are of Modern Juniors design by Mona Roset. The novel leotites and attractive blue shoes are by Capezio.

It's the crisp kind of light

No wonder Ballantine is the largest-selling beer in the East.

Jack Stroud

Jack Stroud (66), thankfully, is sound again after a couple of seasons of being plagued by knee injuries. When he's on solid underpinning, there's no better guard in the business than the deep-chested Tennessee graduate. Even when hobbled, as he was during most of 1957 and 1958, he was better than fair. Jack puts his 235 pounds to effective blocking use on straightahead plays and also is a tiger at leading the interference on sweeps.

Giant Album

Mel Triplett

For five years Mel Triplett (33) has provided the Giants with lethal blocking and powerful running from the fulback position. The 215-pound Ohioan, drafted No. 5 by the Giants in 1955 after winning All-Ohio honors at the University of Toledo, hits the line with tremendous impact and keeps chugging for extra yards after being tackled. Mel, the father of five children, is studying to become a sociologist.

Roosevelt Grier

Having Roosevelt Grier (76) back in harness after a year in the Army gave the Giants a big boost toward the 1958 Eastern title. The amiable 270-pound giant from Linden, N. J., and Penn State is one of the best defensive tackles in the business. A man of many talents, Rosey was a shotput and discus champion in college and has professional ability as a jazz singer and pianist.

Looking Over the Browns

HERE they are again—the Big, Bad, Browns from Cleveland!

Don't get the wrong idea about the "Big, Bad" prefix. It carries no sinister connotations. Rather, it reflects a deep, sincere respect for a team whose "Big" game of football has been "Bad" news to rivals for the greater part of fourteen years.

Over this span, the Browns have compiled a fantastic record. From their organization in 1946 through 1949, they ruled the All-America Conference without serious challenge. As a National League member since 1950, they have captured seven divisional titles and three world championships in nine completed seasons and are in a position to gain added honors in this unfinished campaign.

All the original Browns except time-defying Lou Groza, the place-kicking tackle, have faded from the scene. But Paul Brown, founding father and chief architect of the Cleveland entry, is well on the way to erecting another monument to his genius as a coach and organizer.

With Jimmy Brown, Bobby Mitchell and Milt Plum as prime movers, this new Cleveland team is beginning to develop the awesome efficiency on attack that Otto Graham, Marion Motley and Company gave to the Browns of old.

JIM BROWN

Jimmy Brown, of whose incipient greatness New Yorkers have been aware since his fabulous four-sport exploits at Nassau County's Manhasset High, is knocking over National League rushing records like tenpins. This nimble, indestructible giant won the ground-gaining title by pounding out 942 yards as a rookie out of Syracuse in 1957. In so doing, he set a single-game rushing record of 237 yards against the Rams.

Last season, Jolting Jim stepped up the pace to 1,527 yards, which set a league mark, and equalled another record by scoring 18 touchdowns. He's moving at close to that clip again this season.

It's terrifying to consider that Jimmy, born on Feb. 17, 1936, is only 23 and just beginning to get his full strength.

In Mitchell, Cleveland has an ideal running mate for Brown. The fleet 187-pound Illinois graduate is a constant outside threat. A couple of weeks ago, when the Redskins stacked their line to stop Brown, who was held to 40 yards, Mitchell ran wild around the ends for 232 yards, just five short of Jimmy's league record.

After a sophomore sinking spell in 1958, Plum is providing Cleveland with the type of quarterbacking it has lacked since the retirement of Graham. Otto's greatness will cast a shadow for years, but Plum's increasing brilliance as a passer and runner is beginning to pierce the pall.

As a flanking backfield companion, this terrific trio has Ray Renfro, one of the most feared deep pass receivers. Cleveland's ends, Preston Carpenter and Billy Howton, acquired this year from Green Bay, also can latch on to a flying football with the best.

Mike McCormack's return to soundness at right tackle and the development of Jim Ray Smith, Gene Hickerson and John Wooten at guard has solidified an offensive line that had begun to wear thin.

Defensively, the Browns remain as tough as ever. Their huge rush-line features 259-pound Bob Gain at left end. Galen Fiss, Vince Costello and Walt Michaels are destructive line-backers. Their deep secondary, where Bernie Parrish has joined Jim Shofner, Warren Lahr and Junior Wren, is fast and far-ranging.

This is one whale of a football team. It's highly complimentary that, just as our Giants respect the Browns, these mighty Browns respect our Giants.

Series Review:

GIANTS vs. BROWNS

THE Giants carry a string of four victories over the Browns into this twenty-second meeting with the perennial contenders from Cleveland. That represents a pinnacle of achievement for the New Yorkers.

On top of beating the Browns 21-17 and 13-10 in last season's regularly-scheduled contests and 10-0 in the play-off for the Eastern Division title, the Giants won this season's first game between the teams at Cleveland by a 10-6 score.

The series between the Giants and the Browns dates back only to 1950, when Cleveland first was admitted to the league, but it already rates as one of pro football's classic rivalries.

The Giants scored a tremendous coup in 1950 by beating the Browns twice, 6-0, and 17-13. The defeats were the first suffered by Cleveland in the National League and its only setbacks of that title-winning campaign in which the Browns gained a measure of revenge by edging the Giants, 8-3, in a divisional play-off.

Again in 1952 and last year, the Giants scored sweeps. The Browns won both games in 1951, 1953, 1954 and 1957. The teams split in 1955 and 1956.

From the start, it has been a series of surprises and stirring, hard-hitting football. You're always sure to see a good game when the Giants and Browns get together.

Giant Blackboard: About "Automatics"

From time to time in accounts of football games, you hear a lot about "automatics."

"Automatic" is the football trade name for the extemporaneous changing by the quarterback on the line of the play he had called in the huddle.

The "automatic" is designed primarily to counter defensive overloading that threatens the effectiveness of the original play.

In modern football, most teams change defenses from play to play. The offensive quarterback has no sure way to knowing in advance what particular defense he must attack at any given time.

From the habit patterns indicated in scouting reports and by studying films of previous games, he may have a fair idea of what to expect.

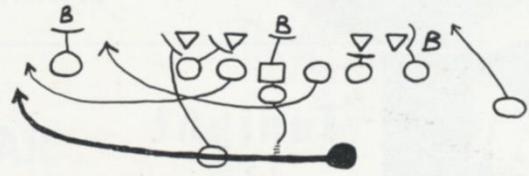

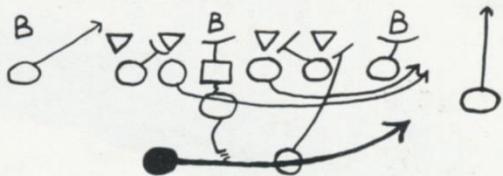

However, it's too easy to get caught in the switches to proceed inflexibly with any plan.

So, on taking his position under center, the first thing a quarterback does is to inspect the defense.

If he judges that the deployment presents abnormal obstacles to the play he had first called, he signals an "automatic" that he believes has a better chance against the defense he is facing.

It's part of a team's offensive organization to have several "automatics" ready for use. The word as to the alternative play to be run is passed by the barking of a key number, letter, color or even by a change in intonation as the quarterback rattles off his signals.

The accompanying diagrams give a rough idea as to how an "automatic" might work. The Giant quarterback has called for a sweep to the right from balanced formation. The expectation had been that the defense would line up and that the play would be run as shown in the top diagram.

On the line, the quarterback discovers that the defense has overshifted to the side to which the play was to have been run (note in the lower diagram how the defensive left tackle and end are playing wide to the left).

So an "automatic," sending the same type of sweep to the left against less concentrated defensive opposition, is called.
