THE GIANTS AND YOUTH DAY

By JIMMY MILLER
Post-Gazette Sports Writer

A Flashback to Steelers-Giants, 1960

One thing for certain, aside from grouchy mother-in-laws and ants at picnics, is that Steelers seldom, if ever, seem to come up with a breather for an NFL home opener.

They inaugurate another—their 29th—today and it has all the dogtracks of another toughie.

For the second straight year the New York Giants will help Art Rooney's club entertain the Pittsburgh fans in the first go-round for 1961 campaign. And for the second consecutive year the skirmish will be waged in Pitt Stadium.

Incidentally, there is still another second in connection with today's game. It will mark the second annual Youth Day, a program instituted by the Steelers to give the district youngsters a chance to see the stars of the National Football League in action at below par prices.

There's a reason for the shuffling of the initial games of last season and this to the bowl on the Hill and it has to do with another sport—baseball.

Last year Rooney was forced to implore the good office of Chancellor Edward Litchfield of Pitt for the use of the Stadium because the Pirates were making their big run for the pennant and didn't care to have their concrete infield scuffed by the cleats of the gridders.

Then, this year, even before the Bucs showed a definite tendency to relinquish it all without a struggle, Rooney put in his bid again for the Stadium and received permission.

And so it goes, the Steelers are meeting the Giants up here today instead of down there, at Forbes Field, the regular home base of the local pros.

To reminisce a bit, the Giants came here last year and insulted the Steelers, 19-17, on a last-minute pass from Ancient Charley Conerly, who also models anything from cigarettes to tie clips in the off-season, to halfback Frank Gifford, who since has called it quits.

Later on, in New York, the Giants pulled another off the bottom of the deck to come up with a 27-24 win on Pat Summerall's 37-yard fielder.

And, in case you are vitally interested, Conerly is still around to hound Coach Buddy Parker and his players, and the local fans. The Giants also have another oldster—Y. A. (Yardarm) Tittle, the ex-49er passing whiz—plus a young Lee Grosscup, who can fire the ball, to help out if the collar-ad man falters.

Coach Allie Sherman, a little fellow who is filling the extra large brogans of Jim Lee Howell, the smiling Southerner, also will bring along his disgustingly fine defensive unit of Sam Huff, Cliff Livingston, Tom Scott, Jim Katcavage, Andy Robustelli, Dick Modzelewski, Roosevelt, Grier, Dick Lynch, Dick Nolan, Jim Patton and Erich Barnes, a tradee from the Chicago Bears.

A member of the Giants, to whom the Stadium will not be virgin territory, is Joe Walton, an end the Maramen obtained from Washington in a deal this year.

The Beaver Falls native, like his late father, Frank Walton, was an All-American at Pitt.

Now back to the kids. There were 15,000 of them in this bowl to see last year's Steeler-Giant fray, proving the plan a wise one which should be nurtured. The youngsters like the idea of being considered part of the Steeler fandom and the Steelers would like nothing better than to make them an integral part of the crowds at each home game but that can't be because of the limited capacity of Forbes Field.

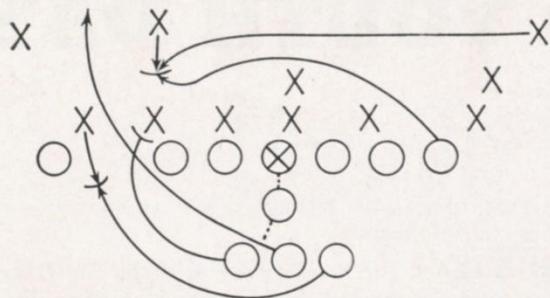

However, the kids will get their big break, so help the Steelers, just as soon as the planned 50,000-seat stadium is erected by the Public Authority on the North Side.

To show that the youngsters are wanted, the Steelers have pegged their half-time entertainment toward the teenagers.

There will be the Steelerettes, majorettes, clowns from Syria Temple and the music of the Pittsburgh Rockets, a nationally-known drum and bugle corps.

All this may be fine, but meeting the Giants is a tough way to open a home season.

NATIONAL FOOTBALL LEAGUE-MOST FAMOUS PLAYS

Perfect play starts Chicago Bears on 73-0 rout of Washington Redskins in 1940 NFL Championship game. Contest was only 55 seconds old when Bill Osmanski took handoff from Sid Luckman and raced 68 yards for TD, the first of 11 Chicago scores. Right end George Wilson took out Ed Justice and Jimmy Johnston of Redskin secondary in one block that sent both rolling out of play and cleared path for Bear fullback.

QUESTION:

Isn't it hard to know which back has the ball when rushing from your defensive position?

ANSWER: Gene

"Big Daddy" Lipscomb

—Well, I answered this onetime . . . I just gather up all of the backs and peel them off, one at a time, until I find the one with the ball! But, really, on these pro defenses, you have to play your position in unison with the other ten men. I stop anyone coming through my hole, and Ernie Stautner, Lou Michaels and Joe Krupa stop anyone who runs at them . . . that way, we usually get the guy with the ball.

QUESTION:

How much difference is there between playing defensive tackle or defensive end?

ANSWER:

Ernie Stautner:

There is a difference . . . maybe not as great as you might think . . . playing either position, you must protect your hole and rush the passer. On the end you have to have a little more speed, because of the end runs. In the middle, a tackle must have a lot of strength to push the blocker aside and stop the fullback head-on. In either position, speed and strength are essential.

THE PUNT TODAY

By JOSEPH RIELAND

In the offensive-minded quick scoring game of football being played in the NFL today, the traditional role of the punter has changed considerably. The punt today is employed by the pros almost exclusively as a defensive mechanism. "Coffin corner" and "quick kick" are terms seldom heard on the professional scene. Excepting extreme weather conditions, punting rarely influences the final outcome of the game.

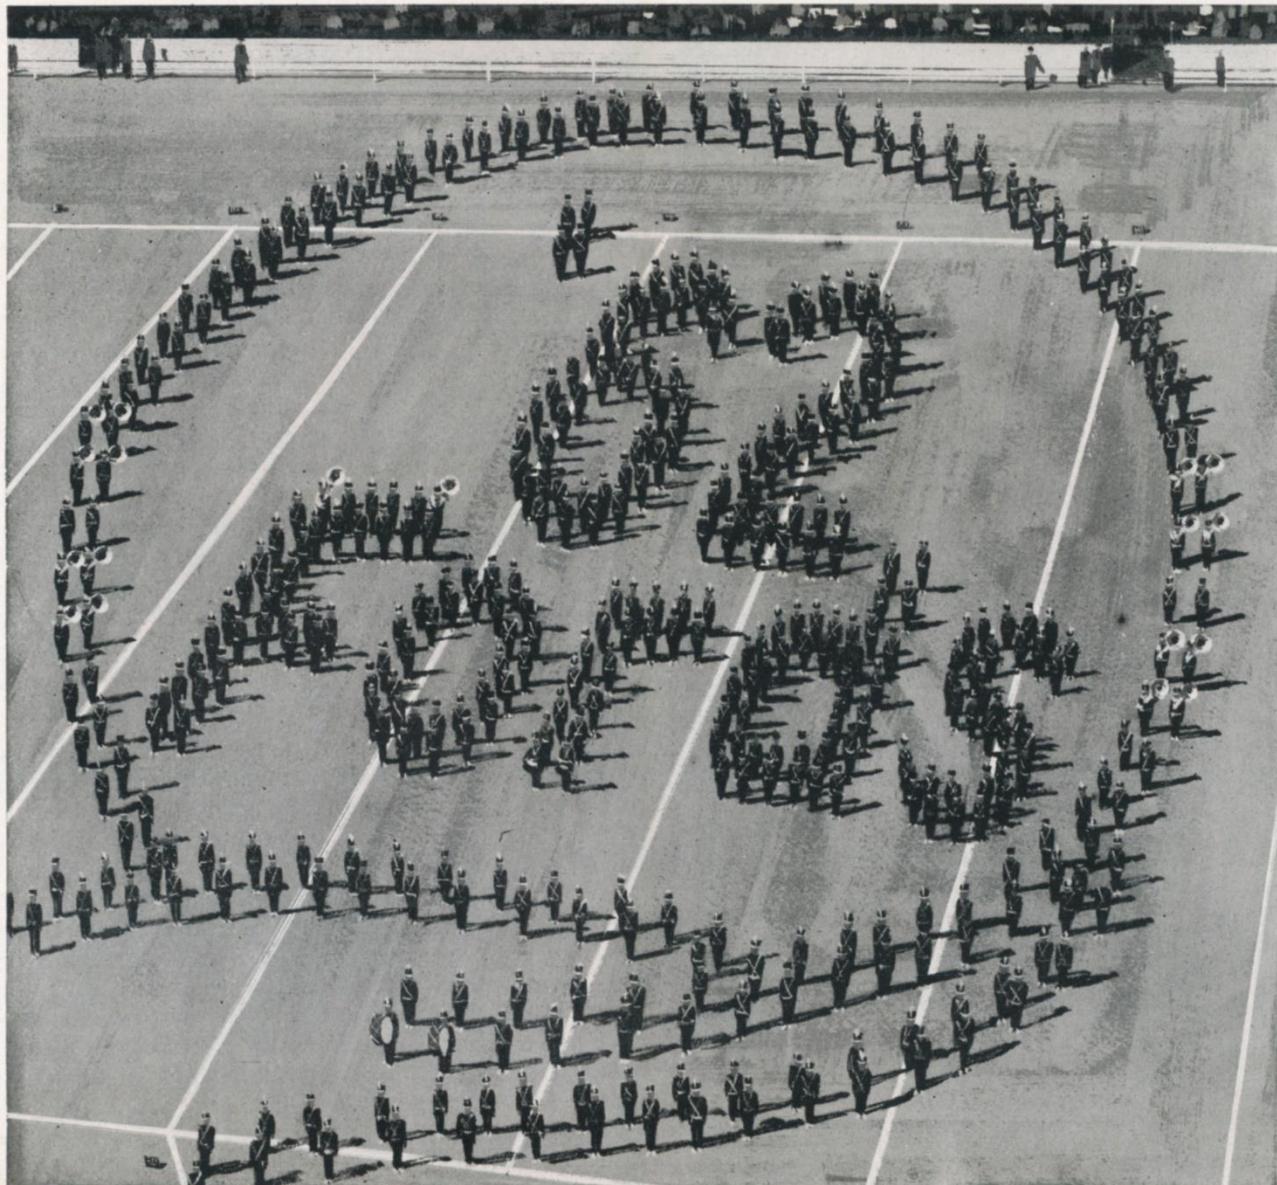

PAT BRADY

Despite all of this, the punt can hardly be considered unimportant in the pro ranks. Not when each year NFL coaches assign one of their precious roster spots to a specialist in the booting science. One of every thirteen plays in the league last year was a punt and the 31,617 yards that the football was kicked last year well exceeds the total league yardage in either rushing or passing.

Just as the role of the punter has changed, so also has the method and employment of the punt play. Today's punter is standing farther from center, holding the ball longer, and kicking the ball higher and longer than his predecessors. When Paul Brown stationed Horace Gillom 13 yards from the line of scrimmage most punters were standing about ten yards deep. Brown's innovations so effectively limited the possibility of blocked kicks that opposing coaches instructed their linemen not to rush the kicker but to form as offensive blockers for the receiver. As a counter move, Brown advised Gillom to hold the ball to permit his linemen to get downfield, or run with it, if he saw there was no rush. From all of this has developed today's "punting team specialists" on both offense and defense. Two, or at most three, men are responsible for rushing the kicker, primarily concerned with hurrying the punt or, if possible of course, blocking the kick. (A distinct exception to this can be noted when defensive teams are rushing a punter standing in his own end zone. In this case because the punter cannot stand as deep as usual, the entire defensive line rushes.) The remaining defensive punting unit has specific assignments to protect and assist the punt returner. Coaches look for distinct talents in picking the kicking unit, blockers, to guard the punter and speedsters with defensive ability, to pursue the re-

Let's Wake up, Pittsburgh

- ¶ Let's end the drift of industry from Pittsburgh
(59 companies gone . . . 25,000 jobs lost)
- ¶ Let's have action about our area's 12% unemployment rate instead of more "study committees"
- ¶ Let's halt the 25% vacancy rate in downtown business and other property
- ¶ Let's find out why the city budget rose 65% in 10 years while population decreased 11%
- ¶ Let's end padded payrolls and "moonlighting" by public office-holders
- ¶ Let's do something for the people of Pittsburgh instead of the relatives of "one-party" politicians
- ¶ Let's eliminate slums, not just move them
- ¶ Let's stop coddling criminals and hoodlums
- ¶ Let's elect public officials who want to work

ceiver. The defensive ends have a very definite responsibility for "turning" the runners into the center of the field and preventing sideline scampers. The punter, having kicked the ball, assumes the role of safety man and should be the last man between the receiver and his own goal line.

The role of the punt and the punter has been altered considerably in the pro game but the actual execution of the play is still a simple matter of receiving the pass from center, dropping the ball and swinging the foot into it. But like batting stances, each punter has his own individual style. Gillom held the ball high and kicked with a jerky, lunging motion that carried his body two feet off the turf. Pat Brady of the Steelers, with a motion comparable to a Ted Williams swing, stood solid and relied upon the pendulum swing of his long, left leg. Bob Waterfield of the Rams held the ball low and seemed to meet it with a lazy, soft, movement but each of these men led the league despite varied styles.

Unchanged, too, is the spectator appeal of the punt. The "oohs" and "ahs" of the pre-game warm-up crowd are usually reserved for the high, hard spiral that catches a wind and sends a receiver back-tracking, a pro football version of the batting practice home-run.
