Giants Heads Stay High

LIKE the rest of us, the Giants were bitterly disappointed at last Sunday's loss to the Browns. The defeat makes the road ahead a lot rougher to travel. But, even in disappointment, Coach Al Sherman and his men held their heads high.

They had nothing to be ashamed of. They had played a good game. Unfortunately, the Browns had played even a better one, as Jimmie Brown, unquestionably the greatest running back who has ever sunk a cleat into the barred turf of the gridiron, turned in one of his greatest performances by gaining 209 yards by running and pass-catching and scoring three touchdowns.

Today, in the Dallas Cowboys, the Giants face another stern test. Like Cleveland, Dallas packs a heavy ground wallop and has superlative runners in Don Perkins and Amos Marsh. And the Cowboys, after a sorry start, got clicking last Sunday and upended the Detroit Lions, a Western stalwart, 17-14.

As a former Giant player and coach, Tom Landry can be depended to have his Dallas squad "up" for this game. The Cowboys have given the Giants fits here on other occasions.

The defeat by the Browns left the Giants two games behind Cleveland and one game in back of the St. Louis Cardinals in the Eastern standings. With nine games to play, this deficit is nothing to get panicky about. The Browns, and the Cardinals, will have days when the ball doesn't bounce right for them, too. No team can hold a peak for 14 weeks in the rugged competition of the National Football League.

However, the Giants are in a situation where they have precious little margin for error. To stay in the race, they must function at their best for the rest of the way. Over recent years, that best Giant output has produced gratifying results. There's no reason to believe that, if it is forthcoming, it won't do so again.

The Giants still have the assets that made them the East's top power during the last few years. Y. A. Tittle continues to pass magnificently and to direct the attack with resourcefulness and imagination. Del Shofner, Frank Gifford, Joe Walton, Joe Morrison and their fellow pass-catchers of the receiving brigade retain the knack of getting clear.

The offensive line has protected Tittle well, by and large, and has blocked solidly for Phil King, Alex Webster and Hugh McElhenny, when these proven runners have been able to play, and for Morrison, who has done the bread-and-butter work in the absence of the others.

For the most part, the defensive platoon has been up to snuff, too, and again has displayed that opportunism that has been a Giant trademark for years.

If anything has been lacking, it has been coordination of all these abilities that have made the Giants a great football team. The stuff to win is there. The job is to make the pieces fall into place and put it all together.

But against Cleveland, except in that unhappy third quarter, the signs were that the Giants are beginning to mesh. This defeat by the Browns was no Pittsburgh debacle. In losing to Cleveland, the Giants certainly played better than in winning against Philadelphia and Washington.

So, all is not lost. There's bright hope yet for the Giants. Don't give up on them. They haven't given up on themselves—and won't.

They Coach The Giants

THE Giant coaching staff is symbolic of the tremendous advances that pro football has made since World War II. From head coach Allie Sherman on down, the men who call the shots for the Giants are 100 percent NFL-trained. That is, they have come up through the NFL ranks as players and have done all their coaching in pro football.

In dedication and know-how, the Giant staff matches any in football and, in line with a long-standing Giant tradition, no group could be more tightly-knit or more mutually-respecting.

Head Coach Sherman's senior aides are Ed Kolman, Ken Kavanaugh and Kyle Rote, all great pro players of the past who are proving themselves as great pro coaches. Andy Robustelli and Jimmy Patton, two great pro players of the present, double up as player-coaches. And, available for consultation and special assignments, are two more great pros of the past, Emlen Tunnell and Ken Strong.

Big Ed Kolman, a Brooklynite who played varsity football at Temple University and earned post-graduate acclaim as a tackle for the Chicago Bears in their 1940-42 heyday, coaches the Giant line. He put in a seven-year term from 1950-56, retired for three years to enter private business, then returned to the Giants in 1960. Ed's enlightened, patient teaching has had much to do with the development of such outstanding Giant linemen as Rosey Brown, Ray Wietecha, Jack Stroud and Darrell Dess.

Ken Kavanaugh, another former Chicago Bears star, coaches the Giant ends and helps Sherman create the pass patterns that have worked so well in recent years. Ken, a college All-America at Louisiana State University who last winter was enshrined in the National Football Foundation's Hall of Fame, has been on the Giant staff since 1955. To such current and recent Giant pass-catching stars as Del Shofner, Frank Gifford, Joe Walton and Kyle Rote, he has imparted the knowledge that enabled him to grab 55 touchdown passes for the Bears.

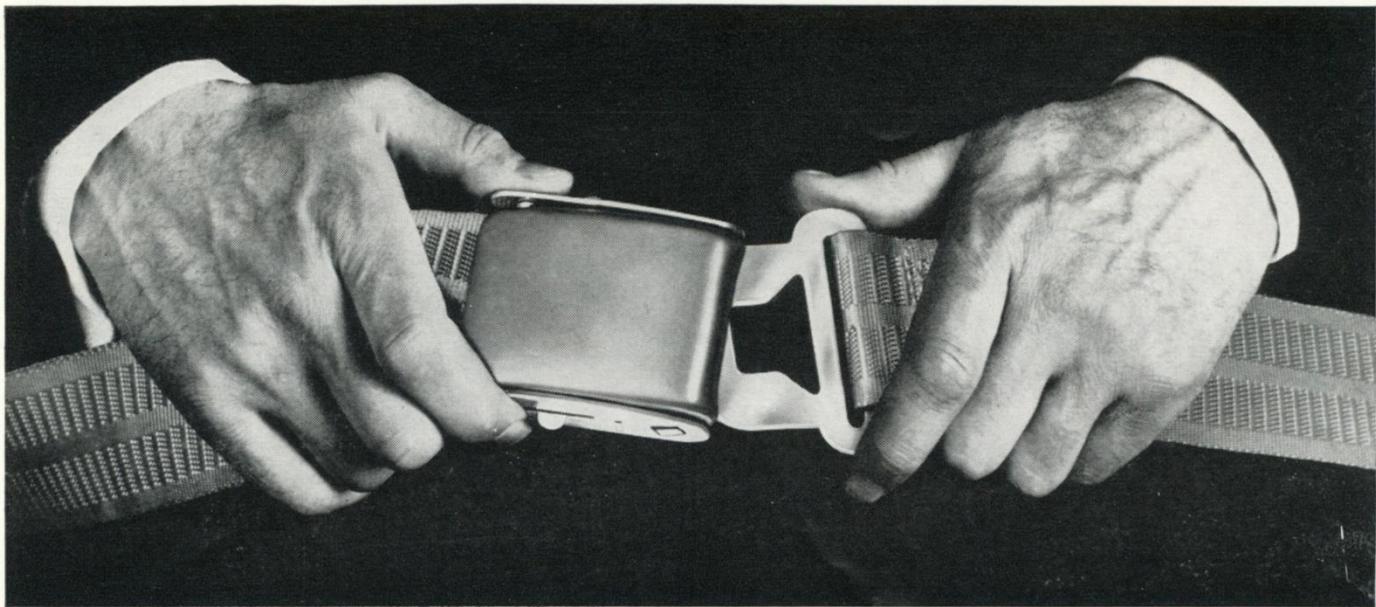

Kyle Rote retired as an active player at the start of the 1962 season, which would have been his 12th as a Giant. Al Sherman immediately appointed him offensive backfield coach. The Mighty Mustang, as Kyle is called in honor of his legendary varsity feats at Southern Methodist University, is exceptionally well qualified for his new role. He was a brilliant player, both as a halfback and an end; has a keen understanding of all phases of football and enjoys the sincere respect of all those who have played with and against him over the years. Rote's well on his way to high honors in other fields, too. He's the year-round sports director of Station WNEW and much in demand as a radio and TV performer.

Having been kingpins of the doughty Giants defense since it was put together in its basic present form in 1956, Andy Robustelli and Jimmy Patton are uniquely well-suited to direct it. They know from practice, as well as theory, what will work and, on the field, are in position to make adjustments as necessary. It's a tribute to both that they are able to maintain their personal high standards of play while carrying this added burden.

Em Tunnell's main duties with the Giants are scouting opposing teams and bird-dogging college prospects. But when he's in town, he pitches in and passes along to the active Giants the exhaustive knowledge he acquired in 14 seasons as a crack defensive back and kick-returner for the Giants and, at the end of his career, for Green Bay.

Ken Strong, one of the all-time titans of the pro gridiron, serves as Giant kicking coach. To him belongs much of the credit for Don Chandler's development into an outstanding place-kicker as well as an outstanding punter.

They would insist that the credit for any Giant success belongs to the players, but these men who coach the Giants unquestionably rate a generous share. Hats off to them!

Isn't it time a Chevron Dealer put seat belts in your car?

You pay only $5.95 per belt, including installation. And he can handle the whole job in a few minutes.

Such a small investment. But think about the dividends.

Did you pass a Chevron Station on the way to the game? Then stop there on the way back. Your Dealer will make arrangements to install belts in your car this week — and he'll explain why the National Safety Council believes they belong in every car.

The belts your Chevron Dealer is offering are made by Davis Aircraft of rugged, 100% nylon. They have strong, two-piece metal buckles that can be opened instantly with one hand. The belts are lightweight, comfortable, fully adjustable. They exceed all SAE standards, and even meet the tough GSA requirements established by the U.S. government.

If you haven't had belts installed yet, have it done at a Chevron Station. And while you're there, be sure to ask your Chevron Dealer to fill your tank with Chevron Supreme — the great super-premium gasoline for "top-form" performance.

Close-Ups of New Giants

Photographer Ken Regan's camera provides close-up views of the new Giants in action during pre-season and early-season games on the road. There are many familiar names on the Giants but Allie Sherman, who does not believe in standing still, also has made many key additions. You'll be seeing a lot of these new Giants, and others, as the season unfolds.

Eddie Dove returns kicks.

Glynn Griffing (15) has poise and promise.

Hand-fighting John LoVetere (76) is hard to hold out.

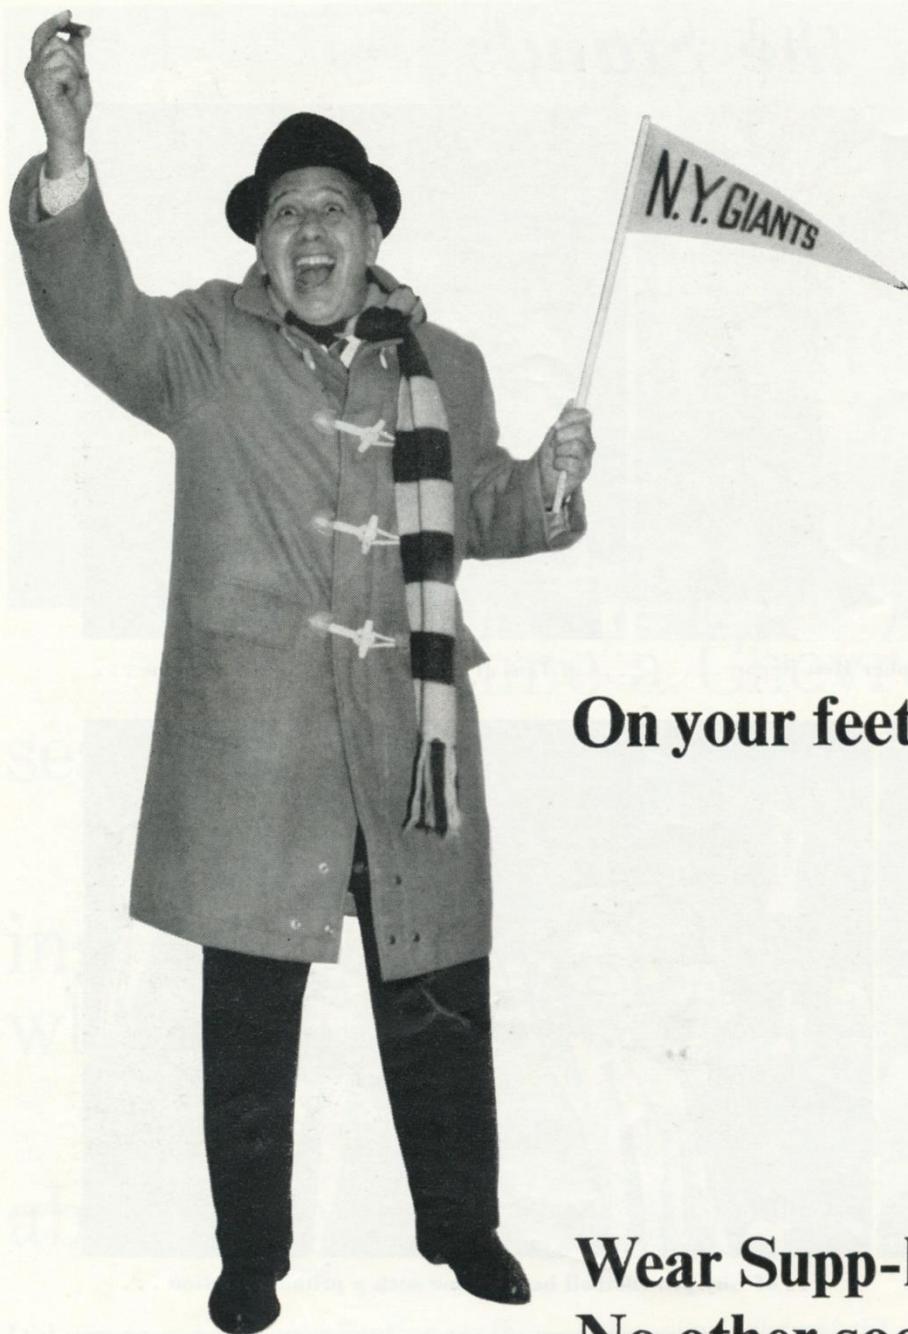

Hugh McElhenny (39) has a genius for finding daylight.

Charlie Killett (37) runs fast and fearlessly.

Leo Kirouac (71) bolsters the special units and kicks, too.

THE way defense is played today in pro football, linebacker is a key position. Certainly, a wider range of responsibilities falls on the linebacker than any other defensive man. He must have the size and power to smash through on "red dog" assignments, the strength and determination to stand up under massive head-on assaults and the speed and range to cover pass-receivers in the flat zones. The Giants are fortunate in having men who possess these qualifications. Their close-support trio is composed of Bill Winter, Sam Huff and Tom Scott, reading from left to right as they line up on the field. The 220-pound Winter, who hails from little St. Olaf College, cracked the line-up as a rookie last year. Huff, 230, is an eight-year pro who has won all-league rating several times. Scott, a topnotch end in the days of the five-man rushline, was acquired from the Eagles in a 1959 trade. In the bullpen is 240-pound Jerry Hillebrand, the No. 1 draft choice of 1962 who spent last season on the taxi squad. And, if further help is needed, handyman Mickey Walker pitches in.

FOLLOWERS of the Giants are poignantly aware that the pass is the New York team's most lethal offensive weapon. But, although from what you read you might sometimes think it, the Giants don't get their aerial touchdowns simply as the result of Y. A. Tittle's launching spirals into the empty air. As he would be the first to admit, the admirable YAT has an admirable set of receivers. Del Shofner and Frank Gifford, the Giant flankers, are geniuses at getting loose for breakaway gains down the deep middle and on those short but vital first-down tosses to the sidelines. Joe Walton, the unsung Giant tight end, also has a rare knack of getting to the right spot at the right time and Aaron Thomas, who spells all three, is developing the same instincts. The Giant inside backs—Alex Webster, Phil King, Hugh McElhenny and Joe Morrison, who also plays on the flank when needed—are gifted receivers, too. As much as any team in football, the Giants are equipped to inundate the defense with flood pass patterns.

Next: The Eagles

IN the next Giant home game, on Nov. 10, the Philadelphia Eagles will bring their high-flying act to the Yankee Stadium. The Giants did better than fair against the Eagles in their first 1963 meeting at Franklin Field three weeks ago, winning 37-14. But that did not reduce the respect Coach Allie Sherman and his men hold for this dynamic Philadelphia team.

The Eagles have long-range striking power calculated to make any foe uneasy. Any point on the field is scoring territory for such breakaway artists as Tommy McDonald and Pete Retzlaff, on pass receptions, and Timmy Brown and Ted Dean, on scrimmage runs or kick returns.

Sonny Jurgensen's normally lethal passing has suffered because of arm trouble but he is beginning to get sound of limb again and, meanwhile, King Hill has been doing a good job of spelling him at quarterback.

This game has the makings of a real thriller and those able to get to the Stadium to see it can count themselves as lucky to be members of one of the nation's most exclusive clubs—Giant Ticket-Holders, Inc.

Meanwhile, the Giants will be on TV, for all to behold, from Cleveland and Dallas the next two Sundays.

Giant Jottings

TODAY'S between-the-halves music-lovers will be the members of the Midland Park (N.J.) High School marching band. From all advance reports, it's a red-hot outfit.

Seldom have tickets for a Giant game been in such great demand as they were for last Sunday's contest with Cleveland. There even were reports of $5 to $10 bribe offers by thwarted ticket-seekers to the volunteer chair-tenders or the paraplegics who are the weekly guests of the Giants.

The West Side Association of Commerce of the City of New York will present Y. A. Tittle with a trophy before today's game for being the most valuable Giant player of 1962. Alex Webster received the association's first award, for 1961. The presentation to Tittle will be made by Adm. John M. Will, president of American Export Lines; Robert W. Tuttle, president of Airlines Terminal Corp. and James W. Danahy, executive vice-president of the association . . . Jim Katcavage received the Kinney Award (one year's free use of a Kinney System rental car) for being the outstanding Giant against Cleveland.

Jimmy Patton's Stamford, Conn., neighbors will honor the popular Giant safetyman and player-coach, on Sunday night, Dec. 5, following the Redskins game. The party will take place at Laddin's Terrace in Stamford. Tickets, priced at $12.50 each, may be obtained from William De Leo, P.O. Box 2182, Glenwood, Conn. . . . Another must item on the social calendar is the Section Five Club's annual dinner dance at the Hotel Astor, Nov. 10, after the next home game with the Eagles. Coach Al Sherman of the Giants will be the guest of honor.

The Pro Quarterbacks Club held the first of its seven 1963 luncheons (the club meets after each Giant home game) at Mama Leone's Ristorante last Monday. At the affair, Cleveland's Jimmy Brown demonstrated to the 200 guests that he's just about as fast on his feet on the dais as he is on the football field . . . Among the conversation pieces in football circles these days is Cover Artist Robert Riger's exhibition of football drawings and photographs, entitled "The Pros." The show, which will continue through Nov. 1, is in the main floor gallery of the Bankers Trust Building at Forty-Eighth Street and Park Ave. (280 Park Ave.).

Bill Winter, the Giants' crack sophomore linebacker won eight varsity letters at St. Olaf College in Northfield, Minn. He starred in baseball and basketball, as well as in football. . . . Joe Walton, the Giants' tight end, is a son of the late Frank (Tiger) Walton, one of the Redskins' greatest players. . . . Other Giants may dispute this, but defensive back Dick Pesonen probably is the best golfer on the team. He holds the competitive course record at his home club in Proctor, Minn.

Record for Y. A.

Y. A. TITTLE

Y. A. TITTLE, the pass-master of the Giants has added another major record to his collection. By connecting with 17 of 31 passes against the Cleveland Browns last Sunday, Y. A. increased his career total of completions to 1817. That tops by three the listed N. L. record held by Bobby Layne. Last year, Tittle set a league mark by passing for 33 touchdowns in the season. And he's got a bead on several more career standards, such as most touchdown passes, most passing yardage and most passes thrown.

PRO offensive linemen carry the heavy burden of having to rout out king-sized defensive linemen on running plays and shield their quarterback from enemy assault on passing plays. It takes size, speed, agility and a lot of know-how to discharge these duties effectively. The Giants' offensive line is anchored at the tackles by two great old pros—trigger-quick Roosevelt Brown on the left side and deep-chested Jack Stroud on the right. Between them are Darrell Dess, who in the last two seasons has developed into one of the league's best left guards; Greg Larson, a rising youngster who was shifted to center this season with the departure of Ray Wietecha, and Ken Byers, a sophomore pro who has settled down at right guard after playing a little bit of everything as a rookie. Available for fill-in duty are a couple of other upcoming young players—Bookie Bolin and Mickey Walker.

DEFENSE, the coaches will tell you, is the sine qua non of success in pro football. Reliable defensive performance is particularly important in the back line of the secondary, where there is no margin for error and where any mistake almost has to be fatal. On the corners and in the safety slots, the Giants have men who commit a minimum of errors. Erich Barnes, on the left corner, and Dick Lynch, on the right, are vigilant, far-ranging pass defenders with the speed and savvy to keep pace with the most artful dodgers of the flanker set. At safety, player coach Jimmy Patton, on the right side, has been the league's best at that position for his nine years as a Giant and Allan Webb, on the left, has learned fast since breaking in as a regular last year. Supporting this starting quartet are two seasoned pros, Dick Pesonen and Eddie Dove, both fast and knowing, too. Individually and as a unit, the Giant deep defenders leave little to be desired.

another new idea from Alcoa

Beer in cans is great . . . and here's the greatest—the can top with a built-in opener. Lift the tab . . . roll it off . . . it's open! The top is made of Alcoa® Aluminum—light, strong, friendly to flavor. Most popular brands now open this easily. This great top is one of the many new packaging ideas for food, beverages and other products coming to you these days from Alcoa.

The Cowboys

PICKED by some experts to win the Eastern Division title and rated highly in all the pre-season polls, the Dallas Cowboys got off to a miserable start and arrived here today with only one victory. This sad state of affairs, which has old buddy Tom Landry mighty unhappy, could bode ill for the Giants. This Dallas team has too much basic merit to remain a patsy. Last Sunday's triumph over Detroit showed that.

The Cowboys are particularly formidable on attack. They pack a heavy punch both on the ground and overhead. In Don Perkins and Amos Marsh, they have two of the best running backs in the league and there's a good man behind them in Amos Bullocks. All three have smashing power plus breakaway speed.

This season, young Don Meredith has been doing the bulk of the quarterbacking. But still on hand and frequently in action is old pro Eddie LeBaron, who alternated with Meredith, play for play, last year. The Cowboys also are bringing along a third quarterback, Guy (Sonny) Gibbs. At 6 foot 7 inches and 235 pounds, Gibbs, a shining light at TCU for three seasons, is the biggest quarterback in captivity.

Nifty Billy Howton, who soon will have caught more passes and gained more yards on pass receptions than any player in NFL history, and Frank Clarke, whose 14 touchdown receptions led the league last year, head a nifty group of pass receivers that also includes Lee Folkins, Pettis Norman and Gary Barnes.

Mike Connelly, at center, anchors a developing offensive line and Sam Baker provides superior punting and placekicking.

Defense has been a Dallas weakness since the Cowboys were organized in 1960 and it remains a shaky department, although Landry, a defensive genius, has made progress toward bolstering it. Tom feels definite gains have been made in the secondary and rates his deep quartet of Cornell Green, Warren Livingston, Mike Gaechter and Don Bishop highly. The addition of Lee Roy Jordan, a 1962 All-America at Alabama, Harold Hays and Dave Edwards has improved the linebacking and, up front, Bob Lilly and George Andrie are developing into blue-chip performers.

Y. A. Tittle has switched from tent-shaped shirts to the man-shaped shirt...Manhattan® Mantrim®

Mantrim shirts are shaped to fit a man. No extra handfuls of fabric to pull out and hang over. No bulges. Neat. Comfortable. Any shaped man looks better in the man-shaped shirt because the taper is proportioned to size. Only Manhattan® gives you Mantrim contour cut in so many styles, fabrics, colors, collars. Example: SPINSMOOTH®, the shirt that hangs, tumbles or spins dry ready to wear — because it's tailored of 100% self-ironing Belfast® cotton. Reserve neatness keeps it wrinkle-free all day. In Grip-Tab Collar. $5.00.

Sizing Up Today's Games

The following NFL release points up the issues at stake, the potential high spots and other interesting facets of today's NFL games.

DALLAS AT NEW YORK

2:05 P.M. (EDT)

Cowboys, after four straight losses, finally clicked last week and beat Detroit 17-14. . . . Fullback Amos Marsh, who didn't start for the first time in his three-year career, came off the bench to gain 77 yards in 11 carries. . . . Dallas still using Don Meredith most of time at QB. . . . Giant QB Y. A. Tittle pushed lifetime completion total to 1,817, an NFL record, during Giants loss to Browns and retained league passing leadership. . . . Fullback Alex Webster saw action for NY after missing two games. . . . Cowboys also have lost to Cleveland. . . . However, NY has wins over both Philadelphia and Washington, teams that have beaten Dallas. . . . In '62, New York swept season series, 41-10 and 41-31.

PHILADELPHIA AT CLEVELAND

2:05 P.M. (EDT)

When Browns returned home from 35-24 victory at New York last week thousands of fans met them at the airport and many thousands more will be in Cleveland Stadium in expectation of sixth straight victory. . . . But Eagles have turned hot in last two weeks; first with King Hill passing them to victory over Dallas, then last Sunday with Sonny Jurgensen throwing four TDs in 37-24 win over Washington. . . . Browns, too, have beaten Cowboys and Redskins, but whereas Cleveland beat N. Y., Eagles lost to Giants. . . . Both have also played Pittsburgh. . . . Eagles tied Steelers, Browns beat them. . . . Game matches two league leaders, the Brown boys. Cleveland's Jim leads rushers and needs only 50 yards to match Joe Perry's all-time individual yardage total. . . . Philadelphia's Tim tops the kickoff return table. . . . Eagles scored their biggest margin ever over Browns, winning 35-7 at Philadelphia last year.

WASHINGTON AT PITTSBURGH

2:05 P.M. (EDT)

One of three Steeler home games scheduled for Pitt Stadium. . . . Redskins need victory to reach .500 and Steelers need one to stay above it. . . . Washington defensive backfield still makeshift. Skins had to play just-activated rookie Tod Rzempoluch at safety last week in loss to Eagles. . . . Pitt's Ed Brown hit only 8 passes in narrow loss to Cards but made them good for 235 yards. . . . Steeler fullback John Henry Johnson still doubtful this week. . . . Washington has gone seven straight against Pittsburgh without winning. . . . Both have been beaten by Cleveland. Steelers defeated N. Y. 31-0, Washington lost to Giants 24-14. . . . Steelers have tie with Philadelphia, Skins lost to Eagles.

GREEN BAY AT ST. LOUIS

1:35 P.M. (CDT)

Sixth inter-conference game of season, and the West hasn't won one yet. . . . And it could be the most important East-West match of the year. . . . Both Cards and Packers are 4-1, and each trails its conference leader by a game. . . . You can be sure the West's unbeaten Bears and East's unbeaten Browns will be keeping an eye on this one. . . . St. Louis' league-leading offense faces the league's most opportunistic defense. . . . Packers cashed five breaks into scores in last week's narrow 37-28 victory over Minnesota. . . . St. Louis QB set team passing record of 428 yards in come-from-behind 24-23 victory over Pittsburgh, and Cards took over team passing lead in NFL. . . . Cards' Joe Childress and Packers' Jim Taylor rank 2-3 in individual league rushing.

CHICAGO AT SAN FRANCISCO

1:36 P.M. (PDT)

How good are the undefeated Bears? Well, they scored 52 points last Sunday against Los Angeles and netted only 286 yards (201 passing, 85 rushing) in doing it. . . . It makes a person wonder what a 500-yard day would result in. . . . Chicago hasn't lost yet in five games, and San Francisco hasn't won yet. . . . Teams have split in each of the last four seasons. . . . Bears won 30-14 on Coast in '62, then 49ers won 34-27 in Chicago. . . . Chicago's Roosevelt Taylor and Bennie McRae each have intercepted four passes to share first place with three others, and Chicago's Mike Ditka has caught more TD passes (7) than any other NFL receiver. 49ers used both Bobby Waters and Lamar McHan at QB in 20-3 loss to Baltimore. . . . Bears used both Billy Wade and Rudy Bukich against LA, and latter hit 8 of 9 passes for 99 yards and two TDs.

BALTIMORE AT DETROIT

1:36 P.M. (EST)

Don Shula, who for the last three years coached Detroit's defensive backfield, returns to face his old teammates for the first time. . . . So does Colt placekicker Jim Martin, longtime Lion standout traded to Baltimore this year. . . . Awaiting Shula and his QB, Johnny Unitas, will be what is still the NFL's toughest pass defense. The Lions have given up only 506 yards through the air in five games but have had trouble getting their own offense going. . . . Colts beat Lions only once in three years Shula was at Detroit, and Lions swept 29-20 and 21-14 in '62. . . . Both are 2-3 so the winner comes out a .500 club. . . . Records are remarkably similar. . . . Both have lost to Chicago and Green Bay and both have beaten San Francisco (Colts did it twice). . . . Both have also lost to Eastern foe.

MINNESOTA AT LOS ANGELES

1:35 P.M. (PDT)

The Rams used rookie Terry Baker at quarterback for part of the time in their loss to the Bears, and the Heisman Trophy winner responded with 5 completions in 7 attempts for 68 yards. . . . Baker faced Vikings in pre-season game won 27-3 by Vikings in August. . . . Minnesota came within a blocked field goal of knocking off world champion Packers last week. . . . Viking rookie receivers continue hot. . . . Paul Flatley caught four for 90 yards and a TD against Packers, and Ray Poage pulled in three for 103 yards. . . . Vikings beat Rams 38-14 on Coast last year, but Rams rebounded for 24-24 tie later in Minnesota.

GIANTS FOR KICKS

DON CHANDLER

GLYNN GRIFFING

THE kicking game is important in pro football. A team is hurting that doesn't have a punter who can boot it out of trouble and a place-kicker who is an even-money bet to bisect the goalposts from inside midfield. The Giants are fortunate in this respect because, at the cost of only one place on their roster, they have a man who does both jobs admirably. He, of course, is Don Chandler. In the practice of his place-kicking chores, Chandler has an important collaborator in Glynn Griffing, who spots the ball. Griffing also is Y. A. Tittle's relief at quarterback. You'll be hearing more of this gifted young fellow from Ole Miss.

THE Giants in recent years have been air-oriented on attack, thanks to the passing virtuosity of Charlie Conerly and, more recently, Y. A. Tittle and the availability of a corps of good pass-receivers. But the Giant approach to offense, under Allie Sherman, as it was under Steve Owen and Jim Lee Howell before him, always has been to stress balance. This season, more than in the last few years, the Giants are equipped with a ground threat calculated to keep the defense honest. They are three deep at both running positions. Old pros Alex Webster, that bread-and-butter first-down maker and touchdown-scorer, and dynamic Phil King, who has come into his own this year, are backed up by the mercurial Hugh McElhenny and Joe Morrison, a model football player who does everything well. And behind the top quartet of Giant ball-carriers are two up-an-coming young pros who also have what it takes—Bob Anderson, the two-time Army All-America halfback, and Charlie Killett, a "sleeper" rookie from Memphis State. Never have the Giants been so deeply manned with capable leather-luggers.

THE '63 SEASON'S TWO BIG WINNERS!

ALLIE SHERMAN'S BOOK OF FOOTBALL

The "Coach-of-the-Year" has written the book-of-the-year for everyone who wants to follow the game with an insider's knowledge of philosophy and techniques. Coach Sherman analyzes every offensive and defensive position; evaluates the various formations used in the pro game; and outlines his favorite running and passing attacks, giving the theory and timing of each play. This is the expert's guide for every high school and college player—and must reading for anyone who follows the Giants. With over 100 diagrams and photographs; edited by J. F. Dreyfuss. $3.95

PRO FOOTBALL: The History of the Game and the Great Players

Robert Smith takes the pro game from its brawling, no-helmet beginnings right up to its present lightning perfection. He relives the big games of the past 60 years, including the unforgettable Giants-Colts playoff of 1958. And he follows the careers of the all-time greats—players like Thorpe, Grange, Baugh, Graham, and Hornung and coaches like Halas, Brown, and Lombardi. This is PRO FOOTBALL—as it was and as it is today, by a top sports writer who makes the telling nearly as exciting as the game itself. With 24 pages of photographs, $4.50.

BOB TAYLOR

JOHN LoVETERE

LANE HOWELL

A STALWART defense has been the bedrock of the current era of Giant ascendancy in the National League's Eastern Conference—an era which began back in 1956. It was in that season that the great Giant rushline was formed. Three original members of the fearsome Front Four remain—Andy Robustelli, now defensive captain and a player coach; Dick (Little Mo) Modzelewski and Jim Katcavage, initially a handyman reserve. These hardy pioneer survivors of one of the gridiron's most formidable frontal firing lines have been joined this season by John LoVetere, a 285-pound passer-rushing terror who was acquired from the Los Angeles Rams in exchange for Roosevelt Grier, and Lane Howell and Bob Taylor rookies who, as spares, have exhibited the same destructive instincts as their seasoned fellow Giant frontiersmen. Big, strong, fast and knowing, these intractable Giants of the rushline relentlessly carry the fight to the foe. To them belongs much of the credit for the success the Giants have enjoyed over most of the past decade.

Play it sure, make it 7

You know a drink will taste right when it's made with 7 Crown, the whiskey that's so good all by itself. Tall drink or short, plain drink or fancy, 7 Crown makes it smooth and memorable as nothing else can. No wonder 7 Crown has so many more fans than any other whiskey ever had.

get Lots More from L&M

more body in the blend

more flavor in the smoke

more taste through the filter

It's the rich-flavor leaf that does it! L&M has more rich-flavor leaf than even some unfiltered cigarettes. And L&M's filter is the modern filter — all white — inside and outside — so only pure white touches your lips.

L&M's the filter cigarette for people who really like to smoke.
